

MR. KNOX DECLARES PEACE THE KEYNOTE OF OUR DIPLOMACY

Secretary Breaks Silence at University of Pennsylvania by Reviewing Foreign Relations.

TALKS TO STUDENTS

Believes That America's Efforts Eventually Will Establish Permanent Peace Court at The Hague.

PHILADELPHIA—Secretary of State Knox sounded the keynote of American diplomacy under the present administration in his speech today at the commencement exercises at the University of Pennsylvania.

It was the most important utterance concerning the American treatment of foreign affairs since he became secretary.

Secretary Knox set forth what had been accomplished under previous administrations and pointed out how, under President Taft, the traditional foreign policy of the United States so established, had been carried to greater lengths. The predominant note of American diplomacy, according to Secretary Knox, is the promotion of peace by arbitration—both by the adoption of this method in the settlement of existing disputes and by taking the lead in the movement for enlarging the powers of the international court at The Hague. In this latter connection Secretary Knox made the significant statement that the foreign powers had gone so far in indicating informally their approval of his plans for establishing an international court of arbitration that the success of this enterprise was practically assured.

As an evidence of the progress of the United States in the cause of arbitration he pointed out the cases now in progress of adjustment—the Newfoundland fisheries arbitration at The Hague, the Orinoco Steamship Company's claim against Venezuela which is to be adjusted by the same method, the submission of the Alsop claim against Chile to King George, and the adoption of arbitration as a method of settling disputes which may arise over the use of waterways along the Canadian boundary. He also pointed out as an evidence of the desire of the United States to promote peace in neighboring countries the American administration of customs in Santo Domingo, the efforts to assist the republic of Liberia, and a proposal, now under consideration, of straightening out the financial tangle in Honduras by means of a loan.

Secretary Knox covered an extensive review of American diplomatic relations since the inception of American diplomacy to the present time by which, he explained in a glowing peroration, he intended to show "how uniformly and consistently the motives and results of our international action have tended

American Diplomat Whose Address Today Explains Nation's Foreign Attitude

THE HON. PHILANDER C. KNOX. Secretary of state, in speech at Philadelphia, strikes new keynote for peace of the world.

SENATE HOLDS BACK CONFERENCE REPORT ON ELKINS MEASURE

WASHINGTON—Although the general returns reaching Senator Elkins regarding the conference report on the railroad bill have been favorable, it was decided today after a conference of the regular leaders, that it would be best to defer action in order that the senators might have time to familiarize themselves with the report.

Special consideration is to be given to the western senators who are interested in the long and short haul clause. Some of them, it appeared today, were not fully assured that the clause in the House bill would meet their needs and they desired time for a more thorough study of the situation.

WYMAN FORTUNE NEW CLAIMANTS

SALEM, Mass.—Princeton University will have to contest other claimants for the millions bequeathed to it by Isaac C. Wyman. In addition to Mary N. Cutler of Andover claims have been filed for John Mudge of Salisbury, Frank Mudge and Parker Mudge of Peabody and Charles E. Mudge of Lynn, all cousins of the testator. Their mother was a sister of the mother of Mr. Wyman.

WALTHAM CITIZENS TONIGHT TO BE GIVEN CITY HALL HEARING

WALTHAM, Mass.—Preliminary recommendations upon which later will be based plans for the erection of a city hall and public library building by the city of Waltham will be heard from the citizens by the specially appointed commission at its first public hearing this evening in the council chamber of city hall.

Col. George H. Doty, chairman of the commission, will preside. The other two members, Joseph R. Worcester and Charles E. Getchell, will be present to listen to the propositions. The commission was appointed by Mayor Walker two months ago.

The commission's first work will be the building of the city hall. Several hearings are planned to receive the recommendations of the citizens and then the plans will be drawn up as the commission directs. Mr. Worcester will have direct charge of this work.

library will next claim the attention of the commissioners. This is to be known as the Francis Buttrick Memorial library and is to cost $100,000. By the will of Mr. Buttrick the city is left $80,000 for its library building on condition that $20,000 be added. The city will do this.

Not only will the erection of the two buildings devolve upon the commission, but upon its members will depend the selection of a site for each of the structures.

Colonel Doty, the chairman of the commission, is assistant United States treasurer in charge of the Boston treasury. He was chairman of the Republican state committee for several years and is prominent in Republican circles. He has lived in Waltham for a number of years.

Mr. Parker, who primarily represents the abattoir interests states that this concern will fight every step made for a drawless bridge to cut off navigation on the upper Charles.

BOARD CONFIRMS W. F. FITZGERALD

William F. Fitzgerald was confirmed today by the civil service commission as a sinking funds commissioner to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of Lenox H. Rhodes. Mr. Fitzgerald's name was sent to the commission 30 days ago, the time expiring on it at noon today.

MEMORIALS TO CHAMPLAIN.

BURLINGTON, Vt.—Two memorials to Samuel de Champlain, the explorer, the tercentenary of whose discovery of the lake that bears his name was celebrated last summer, will be erected in New York state, the commissions appointed by the Vermont and New York legislatures to consider the matter having so decided at a joint meeting held here this week.

FORMER PRESIDENT STOKES STEAMSHIP BRINGING HIM HOME

Mr. Roosevelt Completes Reception Tour of Kaiserin Auguste Victoria by Visit to Coal Heavers.

MESSAGES COME IN

ON BOARD THE KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA (wireless to London)—Every one of the several thousand passengers aboard the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria has now seen and heard Theodore Roosevelt, the "first passenger" of the vessel's western voyage. Today he completed his round of the ship by a visit to the stokehold, where he grasped the grimy hands of the stokers and chatted with them.

The visit was one of the most interesting events of the trip, and the stokers did their best to show their appreciation of it. The men of the off-shift tidied themselves up as much as possible, but Mr. Roosevelt seemed even more desirous to shake the hands of those who were feeding the huge furnaces. As one of these laid down his shovel, Mr. Roosevelt grabbed it up and showed that he knew something about stoking by "sifting" several shovels of coal over the glowing bed of coals.

The stokers cheered heartily when they saw that he was "one of them." The captain of the ship accompanied Mr. Roosevelt.

After his visit below Mr. Roosevelt held an informal reception on deck for the first and second class passengers. This reception, with his visit to the stokehold on Sunday, finished his reception list.

After the reception Mr. Roosevelt went to his room, where a number of wireless messages awaited his perusal. Most of these were from friends in America who had first called their messages to London. Some of them concerned the plans for the home-coming reception, while others were merely greetings.

WASHINGTON—Plans are being formulated by the Chamber of Commerce here for a "home-coming reception" in this city for Theodore Roosevelt. It is expected that a committee from the capital will wait on him soon after he reaches his home in Oyster Bay and officially extend the invitation.

It is designed to make the affair entirely personal without any possible political significance.

Vice-President Sherman has notified the New York reception committee that he will be unable to attend the Roosevelt reception Saturday. At least two cabinet officers will be present.

PORTLAND, Me.—The United States revenue cutter Androscooggin is on its way to New York, where it will receive Theodore Roosevelt and family and will pass through the fleet to the battery. Capt. H. M. Broadbent is in command, and the cutter was repainted and refitted before leaving New York.

Harrison Square Changes

Raising of busy Dorchester avenue will soon be started and the railroad grades abolished.

PARK STREET CROSSING. Easterly sections of abutments for four track steel railroad bridge on main line between Boston and Neponset.

FREEPORT STREET CROSSING. Progress of elimination of grades in vicinity of Harrison Square station of N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

THE Harrison square elimination of grade crossings is being pushed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford division on the main line of the Boston division to Braintree from the Savin Hill station to the Neponset station.

The problem of temporarily raising Dorchester avenue, with its busy traffic and line of electric cars to the Fields Corner terminal and Quincy, over the tracks of the Shawmut branch, will soon confront the engineers. Trains on the main line are now running on temporary tracks and the construction of abutments and retaining walls on the easterly side of the roadbed is progressing rapidly.

A concrete signal tower at Savin Hill is under construction and an embankment between that station and the Bay Ridge creek bridge is being placed. The new freight yard just beyond the creek bridge with driveways opening on to Freeport street is nearing completion.

The easterly portions of the north and south abutments for the four-track steel bridge which will carry the railroad over Freeport street, which remains practically at its present level, are finished, as shown in the illustration. The easterly retaining wall between Freeport street and the Harrison Square station, which is to be about 14 feet above its present level, is about completed.

MAYOR CONSIDERING JAMES H. SMYTH AS FIRE COMMISSIONER

Successful Militia Officer and Business Man Is Thought to Be Equipped to Pass the Civil Service Board.

CAPABLE EXECUTIVE

Career in City Printing Plant Administration and as a Leader of Men Has Shown His Strong Qualities.

The name of Maj. James H. Smyth, superintendent of the municipal printing plant, is mentioned prominently in connection with the office of fire commissioner, and it is rumored about city hall that Mayor Fitzgerald will appoint him and send his name to the civil service commission within a few days.

Those who claim to be keeping close to the course of events in the mayor's office declare that the city's executive has been impressed with the fact that the head of the printing plant is one of the few men whose confirmation as fire commissioner could be secured at the hands of the commission, while it would be practically an easy matter to secure a competent head to replace Major Smyth at the printing plant.

Francis M. Carroll, the acting fire commissioner, it is understood, does not like the position, and would much prefer to be relieved of the duties in order that he may attend to his private business.

Mr. Carroll has intimated this to the mayor within the past two days, and the mayor, it is stated, will be very glad to oblige him, if he can but find the right man.

Executive ability being the principal requisite for the head of the fire department, the business and executive talents Major Smyth has displayed at the head of the municipal printing plant are deemed such as to give him an excellent endorsement before the civil service commission.

During his entire career Major Smyth has been in the habit of handling men and handling them successfully, his career in the Massachusetts volunteer militia, where he has risen to the rank of major in the inspector general's department, being good evidence of this.

As the head of the printing plant he has placed that department on a paying basis, showing a net profit last year of $50,000, as against a deficit of $18,000 the year before he took the post.

As superintendent of public printing Major Smyth receives a salary of $3000 a year, while the fire commissionership pays $5000 a year. During the Hibbard administration a move was started in the old board of aldermen to increase the salary attached to the position of the head of the printing plant, but this was tabled in the common council.

Within the past week, it is understood, the fire insurance underwriters have been taking considerable interest in the possibility of this appointment to the position of fire commissioner and it is openly asserted that they would like to see Major Smyth in the position.

MAJ. JAMES H. SMYTH. Superintendent of the municipal printing plant who is mentioned for Boston fire commissioner.

The mayor has been quite disturbed over the attitude of the civil service commissioners in not qualifying his appointments, and it is thought that he will be glad to name any person for the place who has a chance to get past the commission.

TUNNEL BILL SIGNED BY THE GOVERNOR ON EVE OF PROROGATION

Governor Draper today signed the Boston & Eastern Electric Railway Company bill.

This act authorizes the company to tunnel Boston harbor. When the company was before the Massachusetts board of railroad commissioners for a certificate of public exigency the board denied it, for the sole reason that it had no authority to grant a right to tunnel the harbor. This act gives such authority.

The company is now sent back to the commission on its petition for a certificate of public exigency. It is believed that the Boston & Northern and the Boston & Maine will oppose the granting of this certificate.

Senator Nason of Haverhill had the Lynn water filtration bill recalled from the Governor. He added an amendment to insert the words "and advice" after "examination" in section 4 of the bill, so that the provision will be that the plans of the proposed filtration works shall be submitted to the state board of health for examination "and advice" which board shall report back to the city council within 30 days after receiving the report. The bill was then sent to the House for concurrence in the amendment.

The Senate this morning passed, under suspension of rules, a bill to levy a state tax of $3,500,000.

The New Haven validating bill passed by the House was put in the orders of the day for this afternoon in the Senate. Senator Greenwood of Gardner explained that the only bill in the calendar for assessment of franchise taxes is desired by the attorney general. On his motion the rules were suspended and the

PROPOSED DRAWLESS BRIDGE ARGUMENTS ARE FILED TODAY

Col. Frederic V. Abbot, local army engineer, has received today statements of facts for and against the erection of a drawless bridge at Boylston street, Cambridge, leading to the Stadium on North Harvard street, Boston, which Larz Anderson is willing to finance if a bridge without a draw can be erected. The statements will go to Chief of Engineers Brig.-Gen. William H. Bixby.

In favor of a drawless bridge and representing the citizens' committee to improve Charles river bridges, is Atty. Richard H. Dana of 19 Congress street. Against Mr. Dana is another Harvard graduate, Atty. Herbert Parker, who favors keeping open navigation on the Charles river. Both lawyers have filed lengthy papers.

Mr. Dana states that the citizens' committee includes Mayor William F. Brooks of Cambridge, Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, Judge Wal-

Nearly 6,000,000 pounds of sugar reached port today in the Norwegian steamer Hero, Captain Olesen, from Preston, Cuba. The Hero left Preston June 7 with 17,880 bags of sugar, amounting to 5,711,600 pounds, or enough to give every inhabitant of the state more than a pound apiece.

The Hero anchored in the stream and Thursday will haul over to South Boston to discharge cargo at the American Sugar Refinery wharf.

FAVORS LABOR FOR CABINET.

WASHINGTON—A sub-committee of the House committee on labor has favorably reported the bill granting to labor a place in the cabinet.

BOSTON'S DELEGATE FOR MR. ROOSEVELT'S RECEPTION CHOSEN

Charles L. Burrill, vice-president of the Paul Revere Trust Company, was officially designated by Mayor Fitzgerald as the representative of the city of Boston to attend the reception to Theodore Roosevelt in New York on Saturday.

In sending Mr. Burrill his letter of appointment, the mayor wrote: "Kindly convey to our most distinguished citizen, Mr. Roosevelt, the best wishes of the citizens of this city, and the sincere hope he may be spared to his countrymen for many years."

At the same time that the mayor sent the letter of appointment to Mr. Burrill, he sent a letter to Mayor William J. Gaynor of New York, informing him of Mr. Burrill's appointment and requesting the usual courtesies.

Mr. Burrill has accepted the appointment and will leave Boston Friday afternoon.

NEW LUMBER RATES HELD UP.

WASHINGTON—Various eastern railways, including the Boston & Maine and the Canadian Pacific, have agreed to postpone the date of a proposed increase of 10 per cent in lumber rates from June 15 to Aug. 1, in order to give the interstate commerce commission an opportunity to investigate the proposed increases.

ENGLAND'S QUEEN IS NAMED REGENT

LONDON—Queen Mary has been chosen as the regent, in the event of King George's demise before the coming of age of the Duke of Cornwall, instead of the Duke of Connaught, the late King's brother.

In the House of Commons today Premier Asquith introduced the regency bill, appointing the Queen as prospective regent. Her selection caused considerable surprise, and it is believed to be due to the King's determination to make the Duke of Connaught governor-general of Canada on his return from his South African tour.

MILLION TO IMPROVE BOSTON & ALBANY ON THIS END IS ASSURED

A sum in excess of $1,000,000 is to be spent in improvements on the Boston end of the Boston & Albany railroad, as a result of the action of the New York public service commission, which has just authorized the road to issue $2,000,000 in 25-year 4 per cent bonds for general improvements. The Worcester division is to receive $715,000.

The grand junction branch in Cambridge and Somerville, the East Cambridge freight yards, Beacon park and Chelsea will receive improvements to the amount of $244,500.

A sum of $581,000 goes for block signals and bridge renewals, and the Boston division gets more than half of this.

The Grand Junction branch will be improved as follows: Double tracking, Cary's cut, Somerville, $100,000; third-tracking from Broad canal to Massachusetts avenue, $80,000; third-tracking from Massachusetts avenue to the Charles river railroad bridge at Cottage Farm, $10,000; double-tracking over the Charles river bridge to the connections with the Beacon park yard, $50,000.

The freight yard at East Cambridge will be enlarged and developed at a cost of $80,000. An additional sum of $6500 will be used in the construction of the new freight house to be built at Chelsea. A boiler washout system at Beacon park is to be installed at a cost of $20,000.

The new passenger station and elimination of grades at Worcester is given an additional sum of $400,000, and an additional sum of $315,000 is appropriated for the rearrangement of the tracks

AUSTRIA TO BORROW FOR CONSTRUCTION OF DREADNOUGHTS

(Special to The Monitor.)
VIENNA—In making an urgent appeal to the members of the finance committee to pass the new taxes, Herr Bilinski, the minister of finance, explained in a measure the situation as regards the new dreadnoughts. He said that the deficit for 1910 amounted to nearly £3,000,000, and the annual cost of the army would be increased by nearly £4,000,000, in addition to which the replacement of old vessels would add over £800,000 yearly to the naval budget. Further expenses amounting to £12,500,000 would be incurred by the construction of dreadnoughts and this money could only be covered by loans. Fortification and military requirements would cost a further £4,225,000.

The question of the construction of dreadnoughts and the large sums of money at present required for improvements and additions to the naval and military forces has been under discussion for some time. The statement made recently by Herr Bilinski has, however, caused considerable surprise, for, while it was known that large sums of money would be demanded, the figures quoted by the finance minister are considered to be excessive. The possibility of Parliament refusing to sanction so large an expenditure is being discussed.

WANTS TRI-WEEKLY MAIL FOR CANADA AND GREAT BRITAIN

(Special to The Monitor.)
OTTAWA, Canada.—The Canadian postmaster-general is working towards the arrangement of a tri-weekly mail service between Canada and Great Britain via Montreal and when the present mail contract with the Allan line expires in 1912 he expects that all the fast lines of Canadian transatlantic steamers will have a part of the mail carrying. In this event the mails will no longer have to be sent across "via New York."

The mail service of the Dominion is rapidly growing in importance; during the past year (1909) the increase in carriage has been four per cent over that of 1908.

There is also the gratifying condition of financial success reported by this department; 12 years ago a deficit of $800,000 was recorded in the last report a surplus of over $1,000,000 with a steadily increasing revenue in evidence.

Besides the expansion looked for by Mr. Lemieux, in the foreign mail service, he reports an exceeding rapid expansion of the domestic service—during last year alone 656 new postoffices were added to the system; and the mileage over which mails were carried was extended by 1,312,073 miles; this includes carriage by railway, water, and ordinary team roads. The value of last year's stamp issue was $9,216,011.

King Congratulates Aviator Rolls on Splendid Flight

(Special Correspondence of The Monitor.)
LONDON.—The English Channel had already been crossed twice, on both occasions by Frenchmen, namely by M. Bleriot, and by M. de Lesseps. The Hon. C. S. Rolls, however, has surpassed both these performances by making a journey from Dover to France and back without alighting. Not only did the famous flying man pilot his machine from Dover to the French coast, but on arriving on the shores he dropped a note from the skies worded as follows: "Greetings to the Aero Club of France, thrown from a Wright aeroplane crossing from England to France. Vive l'Entente! C. S. Rolls 1910." Having dropped his message while in the neighborhood of the Channel tunnel works at Sangatte, Mr. Rolls headed his machine for home. Although favored by magnificent weather, it was not until he had completed more than half the journey home that he was able to see Dover Castle, the landmark he was steering for. As was the case with M. de Lesseps so with Mr. Rolls, the mist obliterated the land from view, and compelled him to steer by the sun. As was Mr. Roll's original intention after reaching the English coast again, he proceeded to circle above the outer towers of the historical castle situated on the heights of Dover, landing eventually in the neighborhood of his shed on Northfall Down, with the greatest ease and grace.

Mr. Rolls started from Dover after having made a big sweep toward the castle at a height of about 600 feet, and it appears that the average height maintained during the journey was somewhere about 800 feet.

The Hon. Charles Stewart Rolls is a son of Lord Llangattock and he has always manifested the greatest interest in all things mechanical. Before the days when the internal combustion engine had been applied to the automobile Mr. Rolls, who was then at school, devoted considerable attention and energy to cycle racing. One of the earliest motors imported into this country was ordered by Mr. Rolls while still in Cambridge. Abandoning cycle racing Mr. Rolls followed the more adventurous pursuit of motor racing. From motor driving and racing, the now famous flying man turned his attention in 1901 to aerial travel and was one of the original founders of the Royal Aero Club.

It is, perhaps, owing mainly to the impression made on him on the occasion of his visit to the United States by the Wright brothers, who were at the time deeply engaged in developing their well known biplane, that Mr. Rolls decided to take up the question of an heavier-than-air machine seriously. From that moment he has steadily progressed, commencing by experiments with a glider, from the use of which he acquired the necessary balance and became familiar with the new outlook of the world from varying altitudes, until he accomplished the task of flying to France and back without a stop, a task which it has been the ambition of more than one flying man to accomplish. The progress made by Mr. Rolls in the art of aviation has been rapid and he has given one more proof of what is now a more or less generally accepted fact, namely, that the navigation of the air by means of heavier-than-air machines is no longer a visionary dream of the future, but an actually accomplished fact.

When one looks back a few short years since the first heavier-than-air machine was constructed, and realizes the significant strides that have been made, one looks forward to the future with the conviction that while much has already been done along these lines, much more will be soon accomplished, and the day seems to be getting near at hand when it will appear but a small thing that a regular aeroplane service across the ocean is at the disposal of the public.

Mr. Rolls has been literally deluged with telegrams of congratulation from different parts of the world. The following telegram was sent by his majesty, King George V.:

"The Queen and I heartily congratulate you on your splendid cross-channel flight."

"GEORGE, R. I."

MANY VISITORS BID FAREWELL TO SOUTH POLE PARTY

(Special Correspondence of The Monitor.)
LONDON.—The British Antarctic expedition of 1910 has started on the Terra Nova on its great journey to the south pole. Captain Scott will, it is understood, join the vessel in New Zealand, Lieutenant Evans, the second in command, taking charge of the ship in the meantime. A number of distinguished visitors were present to bid the expedition farewell before the Terra Nova was taken in tow by the waiting tug. An interesting ceremony was performed by Lady Bridgeman, who "broke" the White Ensign under which the ship was sailing. The ceremony was performed amidst hearty cheers.

In a speech, which Captain Scott was called upon to make, he pointed out that most of the members of the expedition had already sailed under the White Ensign and were glad to be sailing under it again. It was, he said, thanks to Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, that the privilege had been obtained for them of flying the White Ensign.

Among those present to witness the departure of the expedition were Sir George Reid, high commissioner of the commonwealth of Australia, Admiral Sir R. V. Hamilton, Sir Clements Markham, Admiral Sir James Bruce and the representative of the Japanese Geographical Society.

It is expected that the Terra Nova will arrive at Cape Town on Aug. 1, when she will sail to Australia, where Adelaide, Melbourne and Sydney will be visited. The vessel will then proceed to Lyttelton, New Zealand, where she is expected to arrive on Oct. 13. The expedition will, in all probability, leave New Zealand in November, reaching the main base, MacMurdoch sound, the following month. It is hoped that the pole itself will be actually reached in December of next year, and should this feat be accomplished the expedition should return in March 1912.

HUNGARIAN GOVERNMENT WILL HAVE GOOD MAJORITY

(Special Correspondence of The Monitor.)
BUDAPEST.—Considerable surprise is expressed at the result of the elections whereby the government party have obtained a sweeping victory. Of the 346 results, 226 have fallen to the government, 14 to the Andrássy group, 37 to the Kossuth party which previously numbered 96, the Juth party has been reduced to 31 from 140 members as in the last Parliament, while the Clerical People's Party have lost 16 seats. The remaining deputies are distributed among 14 different groups. It is expected that the government will, therefore, have a majority of at least 100 votes, since it will undoubtedly gain several more seats, as the result of the second elections.

sections of the party of Independence. As you know, the latter party is split into two groups, one led by Kossuth, the other by the late Speaker, M. Juth. These groups diverge on a question of giving or not giving prominence to the demand for a separate national bank, the language of command for the Hungarian troops, and universal suffrage which takes in the various nationalities living in Hungary. The government party will secure 180 seats, the Kossuth and the Juth groups 180 and these, with the 40 Croats, will make up the new Parliament.

"Parliamentary rule will thus be impossible."

"It will mean a position not unlike that in England today. As to what will happen when Parliament meets, no one is able to forecast or foresee."

When expressing his views as to the probable development of the political situation, Count Apponyi, the great Magyar orator, said recently, in the course of a conversation published in the Pall Mall Gazette: "I think I have a tolerably clear view of the position. The government which does not accurately represent Hungarian political opinion will have no majority. The Nationalists which claim better representation, together with the Democrats who want universal suffrage, with a few other small groups, will secure about 70 seats. The remainder of the seats will be nearly equally divided between the government party, which is really anti-Magyar in aspiration, and the two

FRENCH PEOPLE DEMAND CHANGE, SAYS M. LOUIS PASSY

(Special Correspondence of The Monitor.)
PARIS.—The new Parliament has been formally opened. Louis Passy, known as the Father of the Chamber, by virtue of his seniority and of ancient custom, took the president's chair and opened the Parliament. The well-known member of the Institute fully appreciated, not only the privilege and honor which this position conferred upon him, but also the humor of the situation which permitted him to give a straight talk to the assembled deputies, both old and new, without the interruption or control of any official president or speaker.

The president said that France had now reached a period in its history where changes in its republican institutions were demanded by the people, that in electing 200 new deputies, the country had shown that it was uneasy, nay more, tired of the combinations of the past, based solely on parliamentary interests and schemes, or on the efforts of those seeking either personal ambition or to serve personal interests; that the country hoped, in its new electoral proposals, to find security for men and property. Mr. Passy went on to say that the country had not so much, in the past, condemned the actual system of scrutin d'arrondissement, as the effect of the abuses and corruption which have gradually crept into it; that in any case, it could not be denied that the broad proposals of the party advocating proportional representation have wholly captured public opinion.

The president, after making some reference to social reforms, summed up the situation by saying that he thought that appearances indicated that liberal solutions to necessary reforms were nearer to success in 1910 than they had ap-

PROGRESSIVE CONFERENCE MEETS AT BLOEMFONTEIN

(Special Correspondence of The Monitor.)
BLOEMFONTEIN.—At a meeting of the Progressive Conference held here recently, Dr. Jameson was elected chairman. There were 180 delegates from Cape Colony, the Orange River Colony and the Transvaal, in welcoming whom Dr. Jameson stated that it would be necessary for the conference to possess to a greater extent than formerly the spirit of tolerance, and a policy of give and take, if they wished to succeed in their aims. Dr. Jameson referred to the speech made by the Governor-General, Lord Gladstone, at Cape Town, in which he said: "The thirty-first of May will be a day of high hopes and noble memories, a day of peace. . . . May it be the occasion for sinking one and forever all that is unhappy in racial and other controversies. Nevertheless, in order to secure the highest national efficiency, it will be your object to blend and not to obliterate this racial attitude, and capacities which give brilliancy and strength to the composition of the national character. For the noble consummation of the Union all parties must be accorded equal credit and honor. I am confident that the difficulties and differences ahead will be controlled and improved profitably by a constant and abundant spirit of conciliation and forbearance." If, Dr. Jameson declared, the policy indicated in this speech is carried out, they could look forward with confidence to the future as a new South African nation.

At the conclusion of the conference Dr. Jameson spoke at a public meeting held in the theater, when he announced the formation of a single party, which he proposed should be known as the Unionist party of South Africa, with a common platform and organization. The program adopted by the conference might, he considered, be described as equality of opportunity for all and rapid development of the country. With regard to the native policy, he said that the party considered that the time was not yet ripe for unanimous action. As to the fiscal system, he announced that the party considered that it should be one of moderate protection, coupled with reciprocal preference with the other states of the empire.

NEWTON.—The qualifying round of medal play in the eighth annual amateur championship golf tournament of Massachusetts started this morning on the links of the Brae-Burn Country Club and with all of the leading players in the state taking part some low cards are being looked for before the round is concluded tonight.

Henry Jewett, Brae-Burn, the actor who is playing in "The Man from Home," and John Wythe, Country Club, were the first to start, driving off at 9:30. C. T. Crocker, Jr., of the Country Club had the honor of turning in the best card for morning play, a fine 86. Seven at the sixth and tenth holes kept him from doing even better. His card by strokes was:

Out 4 5 4 5 3 4 6—42
In 5 6 4 5 5 4 4—44—86

Closely following Crocker was J. R. Hyman, the Vesper Country Club star, who made the journey in 87. Seven at the first, ninth and eleventh holes kept his score high. His card by strokes was:

Out 7 4 5 5 4 5 5 7—45
In 5 7 4 5 5 4 4 5—47—87

Of the other players who started in the morning, there seems to be little chance of any getting into the match play. Henry Jewett and John Wythe had difficulties at two of the holes, the first named taking 10 strokes at the first hole, and the second 12 at the third.

R. R. Freeman of the Wollaston Golf Club and R. A. Leeson of the Country Club had cards of 92 and 95 respectively. The only former champion who is not in the tournament this year is A. Carnegie, 2d, who won it in 1904, when a member of the Essex Country Club. Percy Gilbert of Brae-Burn, the present champion, and A. G. Lockwood, a three-time winner, are again competing and they will give the other qualifiers a hard battle for the final honors. Other promising candidates for the final round are P. W. Whittemore, T. M. Chaffin, H. H. Wilder, W. C. Chick, C. T. Crocker, Jr., B. S. Evans, F. H. Hoyt, J. B. Hyman, J. N. Manning, K. E. Mosser, W. E. Stiles, J. G. Thorpe, A. L. White, C. Zuehlke and T. G. Stevenson.

Added interest is being taken in the qualifying round by the competition for the Windeler shield, which has been played for in conjunction with the medal play competition for four years. In this competition the aggregate score of any five members of any club which proves to be the lowest, wins the shield for the club, to be held for one year. The summary:

HILL TO CAPTAIN MICHIGAN.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Norman Hill of Halesbury, Ont., the veteran first baseman of the Michigan baseball squad, has been elected to the captaincy of next season's aggregation. The official "M" has been awarded to 13 of the men who have played on the varsity team this year, the following being given the insignia: Ezenroth (captain), Walsh, Hill, J. Campbell, Marlin, Lothrop, Walters, Hayes, Mitchell, Drake, Smith, H. Campbell and Verheyen.

As all of these men with the exception of Ezenroth will be in college next year the prospects of a winning team for next season are very bright. The aggregation which Hill will lead should be one of the strongest that has ever represented the maize and blue on the diamond. Hill first won his "M" in 1909 and this year was one of the mainstays of the team.

GARDNER AFTER NEW RECORD.

NEW YORK.—G. P. Gardner, Jr., the Harvard hurdler who broke the world's record for the one-fifth mile low hurdles last Saturday at the spring games of the New York A. C. at Travers Island, N. Y., is preparing for his attempt at the world's record for the quarter-mile hurdle race at Brooklyn Saturday. The mark, 54.3-55, was made by Harry Hillman at Travers Island, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1904.

WRAY CORRECTING IMPERFECTIONS

Follows Harvard Varsity in a Single Scull and Gives the Men Much Individual Coaching.

HARVARD CREW TRAINING QUARTERS, Red Top, Conn.—In its new shell the Harvard varsity eight today rowed down stream and back a distance of about three miles. Coach Wray followed in a single scull, closely observing every move of the men and continually halting them to show an oarsman some imperfection in his work.

The camp is placed with the new shell, which was built by Sims & Son, Putney, Eng. The boat rides well between strokes but does not seem to steer well. Coach Wray planned to remedy this fault before the afternoon row.

Sargent was back in his old place at stroke in the varsity four, replacing Waite. Sullivan went in at No. 2 in the freshman eight and Chadwick took his seat at No. 2 in the freshmen four.

Considerable improvement is being noted in the Harvard varsity eight. The men are showing a firmer catch and a harder finish. In the morning practice Tuesday the eight paddled two miles down stream to the navy yard, with Coach Wray pulling No. 5. Late in the afternoon the eight rowed leisurely over the same distance with Bacon at No. 5. A temporary change was made in the varsity four oar as a result of a short race between the first and second fours, which the latter won. Waite, stroke of the second boat, was promoted to the same position in the first, Sargent replacing the second. In a short brush after the change had been made the first won handily.

The freshmen eight and four had light work. All the crews are now trying to obtain a hard snappy finish and a quick "shoot-away" of the hands.

Varsity eight—Stroke, Cutler; 7, Wald; 8, Strong; 9, Bacon; 4, Withington; 3, Metcalf; 2, Newton; bow, Whitney; coxswain, King.

Freshman eight—Stroke, Goodale; 7, Moffat; 6, Stratton; 5, Keays; 4, Lincoln; 3, Cutler; 2, Weston; bow, Meyer; coxswain, Abels.

Varsity four—Stroke, Sargent; 3, Loring; 2, Smith; bow, Wiggins; coxswain, Strauss.

Freshman four—Stroke, Sullivan; 3, Morgan; 2, Davis; bow, Parker; coxswain, Browne.

The first call for candidates for the Boston interscholastic eight-oared crew was issued for this afternoon by Coach John Graney. They will report at the B. A. A. boat house and will probably use the shell of the Brookline gymnasium, as one has not been secured from Harvard as yet.

The following candidates will probably go out on the river today: Cooley of Brookline high stroke, Coleman of Cambridge Latin 7, Wheelwright of Noble & Greenough 6, Crombie of Roxbury Latin 5, Storer of Noble & Greenough 3, Stebbins of Volkman 2, Collins of Brookline high and Hay of Brookline coxswain.

Vanderbilt, Jr., president of the Motor Cup Holding Company, under whose auspices the grand prize race of the Automobile Club of America is to be run this year, announced Tuesday the receipt of three entries from Italy and an equal number from Germany, making six additional entries in all. The Italian cars entered are three Fiat's, to be driven respectively by Ralph De Palma, Felice Nazzari and Louis Wagner. The German cars entered are three Benz cars, to be driven by George Robertson, Louis Hemery and Barney Oldfield.

LIGHT WORK FOR YALE OARSMEN

Six Boats Are Given About Two-Mile Row This Morning—Coach Kennedy Much Pleased.

YALE CREW TRAINING QUARTERS, Gales Ferry, Conn.—The hot weather made hard work inadvisable this morning. Coach Kennedy had all hands on the water about 10 o'clock, but instructed the men to take things easy. The six boats rowed about two miles each. Coach Kennedy is congratulating himself upon the excellent condition of his men.

"Every man is fit for the big race so far as physical condition goes," he said today.

The varsity and freshman eights were given their hardest work of the year here Tuesday. Colburn, who has been stroking the varsity four-oar, was rowing No. 2 in place of Tucker, who was temporarily out of the shell.

Low was in Colburn's place in the four and Patterson was at stroke in the second four and S. J. Newman was placed at No. 3 in the same boat. This latter quartet took a short, leisurely paddle.

In the evening the crews were given the longest row they have had this year. The whole distance covered was about 11 miles, the men pulling down stream and going some distance beyond the bridge before turning. The return trip they made in one stretch at a low stroke. None of the men showed any effects from the work. The freshman and varsity fours had a slow row down to the navy yard and back, while the second four took a still shorter pull, their distance being a mile and a half down the river and return.

Examinations are now over and the oarsmen can give their undivided attention to rowing, and they will have more strenuous practice than heretofore.

RATIONAL GOLF

BY JASON ROGERS.

Every now and again we run across the player who is so far off his wooden clubs that he feels compelled to resort to iron throughout the round. Never having had such an experience, I cannot help but think that it is rather an imaginary trouble than anything else. Yet I have seen very good players unable to hit a ball fairly with a wooden club.

In most cases that have come under my close observation the player off his wooden clubs failed to get his club down to the ball, and therefore, did not give his club a chance to meet the ball squarely and get it away clearly.

STREET RAILWAY DEVELOPMENT

COMMERCE WINS LEAGUE SERIES

Not One Defeat During the Season—The Last Game Taken From Mechanic Arts, 8 to 6.

The High School of Commerce finished the Boston high school league series without a defeat by taking the last game from the Mechanic Arts Tuesday afternoon to the tune of 8 to 6.

Lundin pitched fine ball for the winners and was well supported by the infielders. Broders is largely responsible for his team's many scores, for in the first and third his hitting brought in three tallies. The score:

Innings..... 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 R. H. E.

H. S. C..... 4 12 0 0 0 1—8 8 1

Mechanic Arts..... 0 0 0 2 3 0 1 0—6 10 6

NORRINGTON TENNIS CAPTAIN.

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Ralph M. Norrington of Bay City, playing his first year of Michigan varsity tennis team, has won additional honors by defeating Captain Ayres and taking first place in the annual tournament. At the close of the tournament he was elected captain for the coming year. Norrington was the only varsity player whose showing this season made him worthy of the honor, and who was eligible. Ayres and Shafroth will not be in college next year and Price has already had the captaincy. The official tennis "M" was awarded to the members of the team for their victory over Cornell on the eastern trip. Captain Ayres, Price, Shafroth and Norrington received the insignia.

GLIDDEN TOURISTS ARE ON SECOND DAY'S RUN TO NASHVILLE

Eight of the Cars in the Two Divisions Have Already Received Penalties for Infractions of the Rules.

ON LONG RUN TODAY

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The pacemaker for the second day's run in the Glidden tour of 2851 miles left this city at 6:15 this morning, followed three quarters of an hour later by Ray McNamara, driver of Premier No. 1. Dal Lewis was pacemaker. The other cars got off at three-minute intervals from the Selbach hotel.

Nineteen of the 26 cars held perfect scores before today's start, but owing to the condition of the roads to Nashville it is predicted a number of these will get penalization marks. Today's schedule called for 193 miles and provided for the fording of numerous creeks.

The breaking of a right front wheel of the Cole "30" car was the worst accident experienced by any of the contestants Tuesday. It occurred 13 miles from Louisville when the driver, A. P. Martin, tried to avoid a buggy. The car was penalized 1042 points.

Seven other cars contesting for the Glidden and the Chicago trophies were penalized for minor accidents. The 162 miles between Cincinnati and Louisville were covered in 9h. 42m.

Automobile enthusiasts along the route were out in force to witness the contestants. Many escorted the cars for some distances. One noticeable feature of the field this year is the small number of heavy touring cars. Most of the contestants are light compared to previous years, and are of types that have proved themselves capable of standing up under rough going.

Today's trip will take in the following places: Louisville to Nashville, Tenn., passing Bueller, Fern Creek, Ashville, Thixton, Mount Washington, Smithville, High Grove, Cox's Creek, Bardston, Ballton, New Haven, Athertonville, Buffalo, Magnolia, Pike View, Cammer, Hardyville, Uno, Bear Wallow, Cave City, Gladgow Junction, Bowling Green, Franklin, Mitchell, Mulloy's, Whitehouse, Millersville, Goodlettsville, Nashville.

HUDSON RIVER CREWS ARE BUSY

Morning Practice Is Confined to Light Work, With Prospects of Hard Rowing This Evening.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—Oppressive heat prevented the college crews from getting in any hard work on the Hudson river early today. The river was as smooth as a pond; but the atmosphere kept down fast rowing. Columbia's eight did eight miles on the upper course, working up close to the east bank.

Syracuse, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin did some practice work on the lower course. Syracuse was most ambitious, doing eight miles at a good clip, hitting up 36 strokes to the minute at the start, but no time was taken.

Coach Ward of the Pennsylvania squad made a change in the order of his two fours Tuesday, which up to the present time have been doing some queer stunts in their sprints together, the substitutes usually managing to run away from the varsity. Two of the men formerly in the varsity boat were sent to the second boat, while Thomas, at No. 3 in the varsity, was moved to stroke. Peterson, the previous stroke, was sent in at No. 3 in the second boat, and Ferguson and their places were filled by H. P. Smith and Stifel, who had corresponding positions in the second varsity. The eights have not yet been sent over the four-mile course, but by Friday these time trials will be the order rather than the exception. The men had about a nine-mile paddle in the morning and about 10 in the afternoon.

Some pretty rowing was done by Columbia Tuesday. Rice did not send the men over the entire course, but let them hit it up when they came to the bridge. The varsity pulled out two lengths of open water ahead of the freshman boat, but both left the second varsity eight far behind. The consistent manner in which the varsity is distancing the substitute eight is a good sign, and shows to what good advantage Rice has picked out his strongest men.

The Cornell crews were all sent over the four-mile course Tuesday, although they were not pushed. In the afternoon the boats went upstream for a long but easy pull.

Wisconsin had a rest Tuesday, the Badgers taking "exams" instead. The crews got out on the river in the afternoon, but went downstream for their usual paddle.

Fred P. Dalzell as commodore will have full charge of events down the bay.

The flotilla will rendezvous in the Narrows at 8:30 a. m., extending from a point off quarantine station northward to Robbins Reef light until the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria drops her anchor at quarantine and Mr. Roosevelt boards the revenue cutter Androscoggin. Then the Androscoggin will pass through the center of the flotilla, followed by the tug Dalzell in command of Commodore Dalzell. The boats of the flotilla will then fall in behind, forming a double column and led by the Androscoggin will proceed up the bay to a point opposite Fifty-ninth street, where a stake-boat will be anchored. Turning to the east side of the river, the procession will proceed southward to the Battery, where at 11 o'clock Colonel Roosevelt will be received by Mayor Gaylor.

When the Androscoggin reaches the Battery on the return trip boats will still be passing north at that point.

Prior to the parade and during the water display the harbor will be patrolled by revenue cutters and police boats. The assignments of positions will be made June 18.

The vice-commodores appointed by Chairman Smith are: Capt. G. A. White of the Albany Day Line, Eugene E. In concluding he said that the system of military education in this country is unsurpassed anywhere in the world.

MAINE'S DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION FACE CHANCE FOR VICTORY

AUGUSTA, Me.—With brighter prospects of power than for many years, leaders of the Democratic party in Maine met in convention here today to nominate a state ticket to oppose that which will be headed by Governor Bert M. Fernald, the Republican nominee-to-be. Among the more prominent candidates for the Democratic nomination are Obadiah Gardner of Rockland and Mayor Fred Plaisted of this city, either of whom, it is believed, will have the strength to down the G. O. P. in the coming fight.

Never in the history of Maine politics has the Republican party been so badly divided as now. Asher C. Hinds, the House parliamentarian, is fighting tooth and nail to defeat Col. Frederick Hale for Congress and behind him is said to be aligned the powerful Ricker faction which represents in the Pine Tree state the power of J. P. Morgan and the New Haven railroad. Opposed to these forces is the old Federal organization dominated by Senator Hale, and the bitterness of the war between these factions makes it more than probable that the Democrats have an excellent chance to sweep the state.

When the Democratic convention opened today it was presided over by H. J. McHillendy of Lewiston.

Democrat Slate Broken Today in Pennsylvania

ALLENTOWN, Pa.—With the prospective slate arranged by the party leaders smashed through the refusal of C. Larue Munson of Williamsport to permit the party bosses to nominate him for Governor, the Democratic state convention assembled here today with more enthusiasm in evidence than in any similar body in years.

Following the withdrawal of the state leaders constructed another provisional slate as follows:

Governor, Senator Webster Grim, Bucks county.

Lieutenant-Governor, Samuel B. Price, Scranton.

State treasurer, Samuel Kinkel, Harrisburg.

Secretary of internal affairs, Mayor Mitchell Liebel, Jr., Erie.

Mr. Kinkel wires from Harrisburg his refusal to allow the use of his name for any office.

Unless some strong candidate should be sprung at the last moment by the Munson followers, Mr. Grim's nomination seems assured, as he has the support of the Philadelphia and Allegheny county delegations.

The speeches reflected a feeling of confidence of big gains at the coming election, although the leaders admitted privately that the fight against the nomination for Governor of former State Treasurer William H. Berry by Col. James M. Guffey of Pittsburgh and the other party bosses, would cause bitter feeling that would probably be reflected at the polls.

Joseph P. McCullen of Philadelphia was the temporary and John Harmon of Bloomberg, permanent chairman.

Pennsylvania Platform Denounces Republicans

The platform denounces the Republicans in the nation for failure to revise the tariff downward and declares for "immediate revision by the reduction of import duties and placing upon the free list trust controlled products and the necessities of life"; demands federal regulation of the trusts; economy in national and state government in the placing of all governmental departments on a business basis; declares for national and state conservation of natural resources; recommends an income tax; federal and state compulsory arbitration; limitation of campaign expenses and complete publicity for candidates and committees, and in conclusion says:

"Notwithstanding the fact that last year's crops were more bountiful than ever and in flat contradiction of the promises of the Republican party that upon the passage of their tariff law, and their continuance in power, business depression and hard times would cease and wages and prosperity would increase, we find that wages are less; prosperity has decreased and the cost of living greatly increased; we therefore assert that every consideration of public policy and individual interest demands that the state and national government shall be recovered from the hands of those who have shown themselves incapable of conducting it without disaster."

In part Chairman G. Harmon said:

"The hour for action has arrived, such an hour and such a condition as seldom presents itself to the minority party in Pennsylvania, and yet a condition the logical result of Republican misrule, broken faith and corruption in office of high and low degree; from Pittsburgh, where seemingly only a 'stone' can say 'I was not bribed'—everybody else seems to have been—to Philadelphia, corrupt, contented and minus her strip tickets, from Harrisburg, so lately the scene of a shameless raid, to Washington, where increased travel money and a 'White House on wheels' seems inevitable, where the Republican party needs Democratic support for it can no longer stand alone."

"What we need and what we demand is honest men in public office, not rogues to be put in jail; men of the type of Samuel J. Tilden, Robert E. Pattison, Arthur G. Dewart and Robert E. Wright, and not of the slimy brood running to cover and immunity in the state and bill as amended by the House was passed to be engrossed.

These bills were enacted:

For inspection by boards of health of all storage and refrigerating warehouses.

For investigation and export upon the new bridge over the Merrimac river.

Both President Treadway of the Senate and Speaker Walker of the House expect that the Great and General Court of Massachusetts for 1910 may be prorogued by Governor Draper this evening. The engrossing clerk says that the smoke nuisance bill is of such a character that he does not see how it can be engrossed this evening, but he is making every effort to reach this end, so that the Legislature will not be held up by his department.

The conference of the committees of the House and Senate on the smoke nuisance bill has resulted in a report that the House should recede from its position. This means that the bill will be passed, with the provision that there is to be no prosecution for violation of the law until after there has been a hearing before the gas commission.

Smoke Nuisance Bill Gives Time for Gradual Adoption

The smoke nuisance bill provides that during the years 1910, 1911 and 1912 the amount of smoke emitted from any stack shall be gradually diminished until the final provisions of the law take effect in 1913. It also provides for the grading of the density of smoke in accordance with the Ringelmann smoke chart.

This chart is approved and used by the United States geological survey and forms a definite standard for grading the quantity and density of the smoke. This eliminates one serious difficulty in previous laws wherein the prohibited smoke was vaguely described as "dense gray," "dark" and "dark brown," which was confusing.

The district covered by the bill includes Boston harbor, and the territory comprised within the cities of Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Everett, Chelsea and the town of Brookline.

The enforcement of the law is to be in charge of the gas and electric light commission, which is empowered to appoint smoke inspectors and other assistants, subject to the approval of the Governor and council. The railroads and the public service corporations are alike included under the law, as well as all other owners of stacks used for the emission of smoke. Violations of the law are to be punished by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50 for the first offense and not less than $20 nor more than $100 for each succeeding offense.

Temporary permits for the emission of smoke covering periods not exceeding six months from July 1, 1910, may be granted by the board, provided that during such time the person applying for the same shall satisfy the board that he will make changes or improvements to prevent the emission of smoke in violation of the law.

The law becomes effective July 1, 1910.

Caucus of Republican House Leaders Is Held

Some 75 Republican members of the House met in caucus immediately after adjournment Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of selecting a committee in the coming fall campaign. Speaker Joseph Walker was elected chairman and Representative Robert N. Turner of Waltham secretary.

In assuming the chair Speaker Walker said it is intended that this year the Republicans of the House shall not cease their political activities with the final adjournment, but shall instead organize themselves into a great campaign committee to work in conjunction with the state committee for the election of the entire Republican ticket.

He praised Governor Draper as a Governor whose regard has been first for the commonwealth and second for the Republican party, and also commended Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham as an able official whose services the Republican party should insist in saving for the state.

Lyman School Hearing Order Adopted Today

The Massachusetts House today adopted an order authorizing the Lyman school investigating committee to hold hearings during the recess. Mr. Parks of Fall River offered an amendment instructing the committee to investigate the probationary system at the school. Mr. Doyle of New Bedford offered an amendment permitting the members to receive such compensation as the Governor and council may approve. Both amendments were adopted. The House also concurred in the Senate's amendment reducing the appropriation for the purchase of land for the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

These are the kind of men needed today to save both the state and the nation."

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD REMOVAL SOUGHT BY MR. M'CARTHY TODAY

The Governor's executive council at this afternoon's meeting received a petition calling for the removal of the three state civil service commissioners because of their actions in connection with the consideration of the appointees to heads of city departments which have been sent to them by Mayor Fitzgerald.

Jeremiah J. McCarthy, surveyor of the port of Boston, who was appointed by the mayor to be fire commissioner and whom the civil service board refused to confirm, is the petitioner for the removal of the board through his counsel, former Atty.-Gen. Herbert Parker and Walter Webster.

In his petition Mr. McCarthy alleges the members of the commission did not treat his appointment fairly and that the commission entirely overlooked his qualifications for the place; in fact, made no "careful" investigation in that direction.

"This controversy is now one of principle," said the surveyor in discussing the situation today. "The new charter is on trial, and at present public sentiment is arrayed against the seemingly autocratic power exerted by the civil service commission."

"As a citizen, I feel it to be my duty to bring facts to the attention of the appointive and confirming powers—Governor and council—which I believe justify my charge that the commission failed to do its full duty in connection with its consideration of my appointment."

As a justification to his claim that he is a competent person for the office of fire commissioner, Mr. McCarthy states that he was a member of the volunteer fire department from 1868 to 1870; of the paid fire department of Charlestown from March 1, 1873, to May 8, 1874; paid fire department of Boston from May 8, 1874, to Jan. 20, 1880, when he entered the customs service. On July 1, 1895, he was appointed assistant water commissioner.

As regards his state service, he was appointed a member of the state board for the distribution of the firemen's relief appropriation; in 1893, '94, '95, '96, '97 and '98 he was elected to the Legislature and resigned June 8, 1899, to take the oath of office as surveyor of the port of Boston.

As a United States official he served in the customs service from 1880 to 1893. In 1890 he became surveyor of the port, being appointed by President McKinley. He twice was reappointed by President Roosevelt.

The Governor today nominated the members of the new board of registration of nurses, provided for by chapter 449 of the acts of the present year. The act provides that the board shall consist of five members, one of whom shall be ex officio the secretary of the board of registration in medicine.

The board appointed by his excellency today consists of Mary M. Riddle of Newton, 4-year term; Lucia Jaquith of Worcester, 3-year term; Mary E. Shields of Boston, 2-year term; George T. Tuttle, M. D., of Boston, 1-year term, and Edwin B. Harvey, secretary of the board of registration in medicine.

The Governor filled the vacancy in the third district court of Plymouth by nominating Harry B. Davis of Plymouth, at present special justice of that court.

George W. Searle of Westfield was named as clerk of the district court of western Hampden in place of William K. Buschmann, who recently resigned.

Frank H. Hoves of Newton was named as a member of the free public library commission, to take the place of the late Deloraine P. Corey.

ORIGINAL PACKAGES MILK REGULATION IN EFFECT FOR BOSTON

Boston's new milk regulations demanding that all dealers handling milk in this city shall sell it only in original packages, which shall be closely covered bottles or other receptacles, went into effect today.

President William A. Graustein of Graustein & Company, wholesale milk dealers, declared this afternoon that, whereas he is perfectly willing to cooperate in any measure adopted by the board of health for the public good, he believes that the board would be exceeding its rights if it should attempt to limit the storing and selling of milk in any particular kind of measure.

Mr. Graustein, in answer to the question whether the new regulation demanding that all dealers handling milk in this city shall sell it only in original packages, which shall be closely covered bottles or other receptacles, would be regarded by his company, said that he understood the regulation to provide for the use of any receptacle approved by the board of health. The dip can, he said, had been approved by the board, and in fact had been installed at the board's request and since the new regulation does not definitely express disapproval of this sort of milk measure, he could see no reason for discontinuing its use.

The new regulation which has been made by the board of health reads as follows:

"No person or corporation shall sell or offer, expose or keep for sale in any shop, store, or other place where goods and merchandise are sold, milk or cream, unless the same is sold or offered, exposed or kept for sale in tightly closed or capped bottles or receptacles, which have been approved by the board of health. Nothing contained herein shall prevent the sale of milk or cream from cans, crocks, coolers or other receptacles in restaurants or hotels, when the milk or cream is to be consumed in the restaurant or hotel by guests or patrons ordering the same."

FEDERAL LAWYER MAKES ARGUMENT

Dist. Atty. Asa P. French, for the government, continued his address this afternoon to the jury in the trial of William J. Keliher, who is charged with aiding and abetting George W. Coleman in the misappropriation of the funds of the National City Bank of Cambridge, before Judge Hale in the United States circuit court.

D. H. Oakley, Keliher's attorney, concluded his arguments at 12:30 p. m. after urging the jury to decide the case on the evidence, not on prejudice, sympathy, nor disparity in the ages of Keliher and Coleman. Counsel will complete arguments this afternoon, Judge Hale will sum up tomorrow morning, so that the case will go to the jury probably Thursday afternoon.

WEEKS FORESTRY BILL GIVEN FAVOR

What Other Editors Are Saying

THE selected editorial comment today deals with the exodus of American farmers to Canada from the United States Northwest and on its significance to both countries:

BUFFALO COURIER.—There is no way of even approximately estimating the number of American emigrants who intend to remain permanently in Canada. It is known, however, that many farmers of the American Northwest have leased their farms on this side of the border and have gone to the Canadian northwest for the purpose of land speculation. They have bought lands there and are developing farms with the expectation of selling these farms at a large profit and then of returning to their own farms in the United States. This is a very interesting phase of the emigration movement.

NEW YORK MAIL.—While the rush of American farmers into Canada is not a particularly agreeable matter to contemplate, the movement, because of its very bigness, has become an affair of national concern. As yet it has exerted no appreciable influence upon economic conditions, but if it continues it may ultimately have a depressing effect upon the business of food production in the United States. The fact of immediate significance is that we are losing to Canada more farmers than we are gaining elsewhere.

OTTAWA (Ont.) JOURNAL.—If the number of farmers who daily leave the United States to settle in Canada instead of leaving Canada to settle in the United States, in three years there would not be a single farmer left in the entire Dominion of Canada. Or, putting it another way, the 500 American farmers that daily cross the line to make their home in Canada double the farming population of Canada every three years.

TACOMA (Wash.) TRIBUNE.—The department of agriculture is becoming alarmed over the great emigration from the United States to Canada, which is taking hundreds of thousands of citizens of the best class out of the country, carrying with them millions of capital into the Canadian northwest, while their places are being taken up by the immigrants from Europe.

NEW ORLEANS PICAYUNE.—For the time being Canada seems to be getting the cream of immigration, as the new settlers flocking there are thrifty Americans.

THE LIBRARY ALCOVE

By SAM WALTER FOSS.

I LIKED his early books very much; but his later books are very much inferior.

This is an expression that is sometimes heard many times daily in a public library. The library staff is informed repeatedly that Mrs. Humphry Ward's books are not keeping up to the standard of her earlier work; that Henry James has painfully deteriorated; that Howells has almost completely lost the magic touch of his earlier days; that Tolstoi has forgotten the art that first made his fame cosmopolitan, and that Kipling, who captured the world by the intrepid mastery of his literary personality, has lapsed into the rank of commonplace authors.

If such statements as these are true, then nearly every author's life is an anti-climax. It is a rocket that goes up a stream of startling fire and falls back a black stick. But in the main such statements are not true at all. An author, like every other object in the universe, is governed by the law of evolution and growth. Like a blacksmith's arm he grows with exercise. The more he exercises his art the greater artist he becomes. So his books logically ought to grow better and better with the advancing years. In the majority of cases this is precisely what happens. The spontaneous and crude work of the young author molds itself into more symmetrical results as the artist's hand grows more and more deft with years of exercise.

But the reason people so often think an author's work deteriorates is due to the fact that novelty is more captivating, temporarily, than painstaking and long-sustained excellence. An athlete who walks into a crowded auditorium on his hands attracts more attention than the most profound philosopher who enters in the usual way. So a new author, who stalks into the arena of public notice with a new swinging stride of his own, attracts more notice than an older author with whose gait the public has long been familiar. The young Kipling with his strange, new stories of India, and his rattling ballads that clattered like a galloping horse, when he first swung into the public view was naturally received with bravos of applause. But the public has now become acquainted with his East Indian tales, and the bounding verve of his poetry has become as familiar as a vaudeville song. People are no longer thrilled by the novelty of his work and, as the thrill is absent, they decide that the old merit and virtue of the author has left him forever. Merit and virtue have not left him. People have simply grown familiar with him—and familiarity and worship do not often exist together.

This temporary decrease in popularity occurs in the lives of most authors. It happened with Sir Walter Scott, and his publishers mercifully kept the knowledge from the heroic Wizard of the North, thinking that the information would handicap him in the gigantic task he had set himself to do. Most of us can remember how nearly every poem of Tennyson's was tauntingly and almost brutally compared with earlier work of the poet which was regarded as more excellent. Many of these same derided poems now take rank among the best work of their author. Tennyson felt these taunts; but the grim laureate, as far as public reply was concerned, let his heart in silence. There is pretty good evidence that Shakespeare's popularity waned in the later years of his productivity; and this may account for a certain cynicism of some of his plays—utterly foreign to the genial temperament of the man.

"Never prophesy," said Hosea Biglow, "unless ye know." And don't declare an author's work is deteriorating unless you are sure of it—and experience has shown that nobody is sure of it. If you say this, especially in a public library, you make mischief. You deter other readers from perusing excellent books. You give an impression, in time, that authors grow poorer and poorer the more they write; you decrease the sales of publishers; and what is worst of all, you discourage authors and make authorship a more precarious means of livelihood.

Bryant was more or less irritated all his life because people persisted in calling "Thanatopsis" his greatest poem. Thomas Campbell was annoyed by the persistence with which people eulogized his "Pleasures of Hope" above all his later poems. It is not pleasant for an author to be depicted as a crab who is walking backwards. Why should not an author advance in his profession as well as a steamroller? A man who pegs shoes pegs shoes better with practice; and there is no reason why a man who makes books should not improve with practice also. The truth is that he almost invariably does. Both the early and the latter rain is good for the crop of literature. Let us reap both crops with equal gratitude.

CLASS CREW REVIEW BY TWILIGHT PROVES WELLESLEY DELIGHT

WELLESLEY, Mass.—Class crews reviewed by twilight and under calcium, a Japanese water pagoda, in which appeared 40 boats fantastic with oriental decorations and costumed passengers, proved the most attractive features of Wellesley College "float night" on Lake Waban Tuesday evening. Nearly 8000 spectators gathered on the banks of the lake to witness the display. Occupying a place of honor on the little grandstand for special guests in College Hall cove was Mrs. Henry Fowle Durant, who with her late husband was a co-founder of the college. Here, also, sat President Caroline Hazard and members of the faculty and board of trustees.

At the conclusion of the review, the class crews rested their shells in the form of a "W." Next, with the assistance of the picked college eight, the crews formed a five-pointed star. While the oarswomen gracefully rested their oars, the students to the number of more than 1000 on the banks, led by the gleeful, sang row and college songs. The freshmen song, new this year, had a particularly graceful air and pleasing words.

SUNDAY GAMES STOP AT FORTS

PORTLAND, Me.—Col. Warren P. Newcomb, Portland artillery district, is in receipt of a communication from Washington which suspends the Sunday ball games at the forts. Colonel Newcomb turned the letter over to Captain Morgan of Ft. Preble, and Manager Batz of the team has canceled the game for next Sunday between Biddeford and Ft. Preble. There has been much agitation in Portland over these Sunday ball games. The new ruling, however, does not forbid games on Sunday between teams made up of the soldiers, but is construed rather to apply to games to which admission is charged to pay expenses of visiting teams.

MONITORIALS

AT THE DOCK.
"They say" that some of our folks who go summering abroad,
Though proud of their red, white and blue,
Whose valor they applaud,
While dwelling on the beauty
As they sail back home again,
Still fail to do their "duty"
When they meet our customs men.

They deem it is a goodly sight
That greets the happy eye,
When they behold "Old Glory" bright
A-waving in the sky.
And yet they don't—although their breasts
Must thrill with manly pride—
To please the customs agents
Always put the best outside.

While the thousands of teachers from all sections of the land who will attend the national convention to be held in Boston next month must return home with the thought that the streets of this city are very crooked, it is believed that they will be as strongly impressed with the thought that the mercantile houses doing business along our streets are perfectly "straight."

A PERTINENT QUESTION.
O woman! Since you're striving to be independent, quite,
And to prove men are superfluous, slack!
Aren't you ready to confess that you need a style of dress
That without them you could button up the back?

The Nevada frontiersman who, noting the comments on the quality of verse which recent events in England have called forth, has written to the new King asking to be given Alfred Austin's present position, no doubt reasons that having been a cowboy for many years he is now quite fitted to become a poet "lariat."

ALL IN THE FAMILY.
Harem—Blinks sold me a pair of calf-skin shoes that I almost believe are nothing but cowskin.
Scarem—Well, no doubt he reasoned that cows are calves' kin, any way.

The people of Louisiana are hoping that the Mississippi river will keep safely within its bed and banks this year and not lessen the cotton crop with its overflow. Watered silk is pleasant to look upon, but cotton, when too much watered, means a loss to its producers.

PUTS AND CALLS.
One can see how it might be so with rye,
For there is a reason ready,
But when wheat takes a drop, oh, why
Does the market become uneasy?

THE USUAL RESULT.
Puts—What became of the clerk who was always kicking about the work-he had to do?
Calls—Oh, he kicked himself out of the office long ago.

"What can we do with our ex-Presidents?" is a question to which many answers can be fitted. For instance, ex-President Roosevelt, by lecturing before the Chautauqua Societies of the land for the next year could get money enough to buy string enough to fly kites enough to make all the boys in the country happy.

THE YOUNG FATHER.

BUSINESS ETHICS.

Downes—Yes, and yet I frequently request him to please call again.

In the Realms of Music

PUCCINI'S NEW OPERAS.

Puccini, it is said, is composing a new opera to be called "The Bridal Wreath," the chief feminine role in which is intended for Miss Geraldine Farrar. The scene is laid in England of the nineteenth century and Miss Farrar's part follows the fortunes of a young flower seller who experiences the whole range of human emotion during the progress of the action.

Puccini, in speaking of his other new work, founded on "The Girl of the Golden West," is reported as saying: "I have made a special study of American music for the last few months and believe I have succeeded in obtaining the required local color. As a matter of fact there are some tunes that could be taken as purely American, although, of course, the score is Puccini in character."

"So far as the libretto is concerned the first two acts are the same as Belasco's play. I have changed the third to make it more dramatic. Instead of the action taking place in a schoolroom, I have arranged to have it take place in a forest. I feel confident it will have the greatest effect. As to costumes and scenery, it is my express wish that they all be made in America."

STYLES IN OPERETTA.
The composers who have recently attracted the attention of the world to the new school of Viennese operetta are not likely to contribute so extensively to their particular field of entertainment in the next year, and the old time glories of the Theater an der Wien must be revived by others. Franz Lehár, who has done more than any of his colleagues to make Vienna "once more the home of light music," has promised to rest for a term, the unmistakable fatigue that has marked his latest offerings; so for a year nothing will come from his pen. Oscar Straus, who founded a new dynasty of that name on the Danube with his opera, "The Chocolate Soldier," now has his eyes fixed on the Imperial opera house in Vienna and is soon to have ready an opera for that institution, unmindful of the fate that befell Johann of the same name if not of the same family, when he

EACH FOR ALL.
We have got to be thoughtful of others, and kind,
Or else we'll be laid on the shelf;
The man who does just as he pleases, you'll find,
Is apt to please only himself.

USEFUL LITERATURE.
Upon—Wilkins' jokes are pretty dry specimens of humor, aren't they?
Downes—Yes, he tells me that he thinks that if they could be made into life-preservers they would keep the ones wearing them moisture proof under any circumstances.

One of the very latest and surest signs that the war and all that pertained to it is about at an end is the report that the play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is no longer popular even in the remote parts of the country where it is difficult for the more up-to-date class of entertainment to find its way. With Uncle Tom, Topsy, Marks and Little Eva losing their hold on the hearts of the people, there can no longer exist a doubt that the old order of things is passing.

DOUGHTN'T HE?
If Speaker Cannon ought to have the auto that he sought to Have the government to purchase for him recently,
He ought to still have fought to have the people buy the auto
That he sought to, since he ought to travel decently.

SOMETHING ELEVATED.
Pastor—It is what men do in their hours of leisure that counts most in building character. What we need is a higher class of sports and pastimes.
Deacon—Er—would you suggest aviation?

JUST ONE MORE.
Mrs. Outen—I think the women are organizing entirely too many clubs, don't you?
Mrs. Backe—I certainly do! What do you say to our getting up an Anti-Club Club to put a stop to it?

Under some conditions "poor business" becomes good business. From Kansas comes the report that so many of the "poor farms" were without inmates last year that the Kansas State Agricultural College began taking over these county farms and using them for experiment stations where farmers are instructed in the most approved methods of raising crops, and now these ex-poor farms are rechristened "prosperity stations." The new name is as commendable as the old was reprehensible.

THE WRONG PREPOSITION.
Outen—Miss Fairweather was the belle of the ball last night, wasn't she?
She appears to enjoy having all the men in her train.
Backe—Yes, but not on her train, as I discovered to my sorrow.

THE YOUNG FATHER.
He acts like a boy
In the gladness of youth
When he sees with great joy
His first baby's 1st 2th.

THE WELSBACK STORE
SUMMER, COR. HAWLEY ST. One Short Block from Washington

In Shops of Those Who Advertise With Us

This week C. F. Hovey & Co. in continuing their June clearance sale of women's and girls' high class suits have added many new items to the already diversified assortments. All garments are made from this season's popular fabrics, and are designed and finished in strict accordance with the prevailing fashions. The reductions in price range from 25 to almost 50 per cent, and many extraordinary bargains can be had from the small lots in broken sizes.

The artistic and economic value of linoleum as a floor covering for the home as well as for public buildings has for long been appreciated in England and Germany, and more every year the people of this country are awakening to the fact that for certain purposes this material has exceptional merit. A visit to the store of John H. Pray & Sons Company, 640-648 Washington street, where both domestic and foreign-made linoleum can be seen in great variety, and obtained at the lowest prices, quality considered, will show to what perfection the manufacture has attained both as regards quality and beauty of design.

Those who have a penchant for oriental goods and are appreciative of their artistic value should examine the collection of china, curios, silks, bronzes, ivories, jewelry, fans and lamps on display at A. A. Vantine & Co.'s, 360-362 Boylston street. This is distinctively the oriental store of Boston.

In order to expedite the sale of their large stock of furniture "Ferdinand" at the Dudley terminal are offering at present substantial inducements both in the way of low prices and credit. This particularly applies to high grade mahogany goods in certain lines with which they are somewhat overstocked. Carpets and rugs, too, of good value are being offered at unusually low prices.

The Clark Music Company, Syracuse, N. Y., have succeeded in producing what is virtually a new musical instrument. Their Clark Irish harp combines in an eminent degree the qualities of the small Irish harp and the larger harp familiar to most persons. It is small and portable like the former, but in design and construction resembles the latter. While costing only $105 it has the tone of an ordinary $800 harp. Nearly all kinds of music may be played on it and it may be used for solo accompaniments and orchestral playing. Weighing only 14 pounds, it is an instrument well adapted for use in the summer camp, and on yachting and auto excursions.

The leafy month of June brings with it to many persons the somewhat puzzling problem of deciding as to what would be an appropriate wedding gift to young friends intent on matrimony. Many considerations naturally enter into such a decision.

The Paine Furniture Company of 48 Canal street say that a well chosen piece of furniture is not only appropriate and not necessarily expensive, but can be so ordered as to express the kindly feelings of the donor and appreciation of the likes and requirements of the recipients. As an aid to those in doubt the Paine Furniture Company name in their advertisement in The Monitor a few of many articles they have in stock which they consider suitable as wedding gifts.

IVY IS PLANTED AND SENIORS RECEIVE AT BROWN'S CLOSING

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Ivy day exercises and the senior ball marked the celebration at Brown University Tuesday of the seniors of the woman's college.

The establishment of a gift of $3000 to establish the "Eli Thayer scholarship of the Oreads" was announced at the morning exercises by President Fawcett, who read a letter from Anna M. Bancroft, treasurer of the Oread Collegiate Institute.

Tuesday night Sayles gymnasium was the scene of the senior reception. The event proved to be one of the most popular of the commencement week festivities.

Brown graduates ranging away back to the veterans who received their diplomas on the hill a half century ago gathered Tuesday evening in reunions all about the city and in the suburban district. The old spirit of Brown enthusiasm which traditionally has marked class festivities was to be found in great quantities.

DATES ARE SETTLED FOR BIG CONVENTION OF WOOL GROWERS

PORTLAND, Ore.—Dates have just been fixed for the forty-seventh annual convention of the National Wool Growers Association, which will be held in Portland, Jan. 6, 7 and 8, 1911. President Gooding of Shoshone, Ida, accompanied by George Walker, secretary, and members of the board of control, will come to Portland within the next few weeks to meet the local committees and complete final arrangements for the convention.

At the Ogden meeting, there were 5000 delegates. This number is expected to be exceeded at the Portland convention.

A great sheep show will be held in connection with the convention that will attract a great deal of attention. Prize-winning animals of the finest breeds will be shown and it is expected that the 8000 sheep at the Ogden convention will be outdone by the exhibits at the coming meeting. The Willamette Valley, immediately tributary to Portland, and other parts of the state have many breeders of fancy stock and this fact will add to the number of exhibits.

TELLS OF OFFERS IN LORIMER CASE

CHICAGO—The state on Tuesday completed its direct examination of Representative Charles White in the trial of Lee O'Neill Browne, charged with bribing Democratic legislators to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator. Judge McSurely holding to his ruling that the acts of alleged bribery, other than the charges in relation to Lorimer's election, could not be brought out in the present trial.

Representative White told of negotiations to secure his vote for Mr. Lorimer and of the alleged payment of money to him by Browne. A number of letters from Browne to White were introduced. So far no testimony has been offered to show that Senator Lorimer had any knowledge that money was being offered to get Democratic votes for him.

CHILD EMPLOYEES IN COTTON MILLS

WASHINGTON—Twenty per cent of all the employees of the southern cotton mills are children under 16 years of age, while in the mills of New England child employees form 5.2 per cent, according to a report sent Tuesday by Commissioner of Labor Nellie to Congress. The reports state that in the South 82.4 per cent of the children employed are unable either to read or write, while in New England 12.2 per cent are illiterate.

AMERICA WILL JOIN BIG INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS ON ROADS

NEW YORK—America is to play an active part in the second annual international road congress, July 31 to Aug. 7, in Brussels. This fact refutes a report circulated some time ago that the United States would not be adequately represented at the congress.

Two American delegates have already gone to Europe. They are Joseph W. Jones and Thomas W. Wilby. Both are directors of the Touring Club of America and this club may be the only motoring body of America actively identified with this good roads conference.

Mr. Jones will receive news soon after his arrival in England of his appointment to represent the United States government in connection with Logan Waller Page, director of the office of public roads, department of agriculture. Mr. Wilby, who is the manager of the Touring Club's foreign department, sailed for Europe a few days before Mr. Jones, their early departure being occasioned by the fact that they are about to undertake a 5000 to 8000-mile tour, starting this week from Liverpool, to study road conditions and lay out favorable touring routes throughout Great Britain and the continent.

In addition to these delegates the American Road Builders Association will be represented by three of its members who have given particular attention to the study of the good roads problem in recent years. They are: Samuel Hill of Seattle, Washington; A. W. Campbell of Toronto, and E. L. Powers of New York city. Mr. Hill visited Brussels a short time ago and made arrangements for the accommodation and entertainment of the American delegates. Representatives are being appointed by the governors of various states, but just how many of these delegates will be able to attend the congress has not yet been announced.

The congress is exerting a powerful influence for improved roads throughout the world. The organization had its origin in Paris in October, 1908, when as a permanent result of the first international road congress held at that time the present permanent international road congress was organized for the purpose of carrying on the good roads propaganda in all of its phases and to hold international conferences for the general discussion of all matters pertaining to road building at intervals of two to three years.

The first congress was attended by over 2000 members and 26 of the civilized countries of the world were represented by delegates. The coming conference at Brussels is expected to exceed the former unprecedented showing and a great impetus for better road building is practically certain to follow its deliberations.

BROOKLYN TO BE ONE OF FIRST POSTAL BANK EXPERIMENT PLACES

BROOKLYN—Word came from Washington that Brooklyn will be one of the 25 places at which Uncle Sam will first experiment with the postal savings bank scheme. The law will become operative on July 1. As it is believed that the patrons of the banks will be chiefly foreigners, it has been thought expedient to pick out places with large populations of foreigners. Brooklyn fulfills this condition.

One point that must be decided is whether the rate of interest—2 per cent per annum—will attract depositors. If it does not, Congress may be called upon to place the postal banks on a footing with private institutions.

GERMAN NOBLES NEGOTIATING TO FORM A $150,000,000 TRUST

Really Means an Enlargement of the Present Hohenlohe Company, Embracing a Great Variety of Enterprises From Mines and Factories to Theaters and Farms.

BERLIN—Negotiations are going on in Germany for the formation of a trust with a capital of some $150,000,000. It is proposed to merge into one combination the commercial, industrial and financial enterprises controlled by three members of the German nobility, the Emperor's friend, Prince Max Egan Furstenberg, Prince Christian Hohenlohe and Prince Donnersmarck, together with the Deutsche Bank as their active ally.

The negotiations are exciting unusual interest, not only on account of the great commercial and financial power that will be concentrated in a few hands, but also owing to the position of the leaders of the proposed combination. The projected new combination will be an enlargement of the powerful combination already in existence and known as the Hohenlohe Trust, which comprises all the numerous enterprises of various kinds controlled by Prince Christian Hohenlohe and Prince Max Egan Furstenberg.

The Hohenlohe Trust embraces mines and factories, breweries and agricultural estates, hotels, theaters and shops, banks and steamship lines and many other business concerns. Following these events a fusion of the

President Seelye Given Rank of Emeritus at Smith College Farewell to Him

PRESIDENT L. CLARK SEELYE.
Head of Smith College for 37 years and American pioneer in advancing woman's education.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass.—Smith College has bidden farewell to its first president, Dr. L. Clark Seelye, who Tuesday was made president emeritus after 37 years as the first and only head of the institution. The farewell service was held in the afternoon in the new assembly hall and was participated in by trustees, faculty, alumnae, students and friends.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur L. Gillett of the Hartford Theological Seminary, a trustee of the college, presided, and Miss Mary H. Whitton of New York, a member of the first class, that of 1873, spoke first. Miss Caroline Park, president of the class of 1910, the youngest class to graduate, paid the tribute of the younger alumnae to the retiring president. Miss Anna Hempstead Branch of the class of 1891 read an original ode. Prof. Henry M. Tyler, known to every class which has entered college, spoke for the faculty. Prof. John M. Clark spoke for the trustees and presented to President Seelye a copy of the tribute voted by the trustees in appreciation of his work and success.

President Seelye paid a tribute to the benefactors of the college, a long list, for only one benefaction has been over $100,000, and the name of that person is known, he thought, only to the treasurer of the college, the giver and himself.

GIVE MANUAL ART SHOW THIS WEEK

BROCKTON, Mass.—An exhibit of manual arts will continue in the high school building the remainder of the week. The exhibit opened Tuesday. The frehand drawing was especially well done, in the opinion of the large number who visited the building, and includes work from nature by all classes, under the direction of Mrs. Loula G. Berry and Miss Florence M. Pettee.

The work of the class in basketry is notable. This is a new course opened the past year. Miss Florence M. Pettee being the teacher. There is a good exhibit of carpentry and wood-turning, done under the tuition of Frederic G. Elton.

RABBI FLEISCHER DECIDES TO QUIT

Rabbi Charles Fleischer of the congregation Adath Israel has strengthened his announced intention to resign at the close of his term in August, 1911, through a second letter to the trustees asserting that he has not changed his thought on the subject. Rabbi Fleischer believes the congregation of Adath Israel to be progressive, Unitarian, but he asserts that it is neither radical nor speedy enough for him. He states that it is quite possible that he will establish a new church along the more modern lines of the younger Jewish element which he advocates. His present intention is to remain in Boston.

TEXAS' BIG CROP OF WATERMELONS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—It is estimated that the Southwest Texas watermelon crop will reach the tremendous total of 2,500,000. By the middle of July the entire crop will have been sold.

Southwest Texas watermelons, although not heard of a few years ago, have rapidly captured the favor of the public. They are bringing fancy prices. New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City offer the best markets for them.

PRETTY IDEAS FOR BLOUSES

THE new blouses are remarkable, and that they really pouch slightly over the girdle, not only in front, but often in the back as well. The variety is endless and all are fascinating.

There is a chic little affair of linen cut in one piece, seamed under the arm and fastened in the back. It is collarless, the round neck being finished with a bertha of finely plaited tulle, usually white. The sleeves, which extend to the middle of the forearm, are trimmed with backward turning plaits of tulle.

This style of blouse, carried out in all materials, and with many variations, is very much worn. In one case it is made of white French crepe, with the usual seam under the arm. Instead of fastening in the back, however, it buttons—crepe covered buttons—along the shoulder and down the outside of the sleeve, which barely covers the elbow and is finished with a tulle frill. A plaited tulle frill also encircles the neck.

Another in this style is made of thin black satin, piped with the same material. The front is decorated with smart little pockets with narrow plaits of blue tulle and the neck and

SUMMER FASHIONS

(Copyrighted by)
PARIS—In this city at present many the summer dresses are accompanied by cape or mantelet made of the same material as the dress. At other times third piece will take the form of a scarf of dimensions, while again the mantelet will be composed of another material, but will match dress in color.

These mantelets are just shoulder capes, and frilled, but they are dressy and very new as there are always days in summer when needs a light wrap. When the dress is made colored wash material the wrap is more than not of tulle, matching the dress color. On the other hand, when the dress is white wash goods the mantelet or scarf will be of the dress goods, but trimmed in some with colored or gold braid or embroidered colors.

Dainty one-piece dresses of marquisette being shown in many of the big Paris shops. These come in white and colors and they decidedly more attractive than the dress alone. They are made very plainly with short kimono sleeves and apron skirts.

Another popular form of dress being worn in Paris now is that of white china silk. They are made devoid of trimming except for small cuffs to the elbow sleeves and a scalloped edge down the front of the waist where the fastenings are. These china silk dresses are real shirt

When and the Way to Put on Your Hat

A GREAT deal of becomingness lies in the manner in which hats are worn. The hat should be put on as soon as the gown is on. Don't wait until you have put on your jewelry, your beads, your earrings and your other fixtures. Arrange your hat first and observe the effect.

The chances are that by the time you are dressed your hat will have slid back six inches, or, worse still, have settled down over one ear. Better know if in the privacy of your chamber than to go forth and have the world judge you by your hat.

The fringe upon your forehead must be fluffy. If your hair is not banged—though most hair is slightly banged these days—you can resort to hairpin curls or a tiny fringe. Better sew the fringe in the front of your hat than to depend upon hairpins. You need not take off your hat, and the fringe will show in the most natural manner if sewed in your hat.

Don't wear a veil with a small hat. It interferes with the lashes and gives the eyes a hard and strained look.

Don't wear a colored veil, at least not a purple one. The face takes on the tone of the veil, and no woman

Hints About Hairpins

Do not get into the habit of thinking that a suitable hairpin is anything that will hold up the hair.

Hairpins may be too ornate, which is poor taste; or too rough and cheap, which is bad for the hair.

When you cannot afford real shell, the next choice is a good celluloid pin. This is smoother and less unsightly than rubber and not so ugly nor so injurious as metal hairpins. The latter should not be worn by women whose hair is very fine or whose scalps perspire.

Do not overwork your head with pins. Most women wear more than is necessary. Learn to adjust a pin properly and the number may be sensibly decreased. Overpinning breaks the hair and may irritate sensitive scalps, says Journal of Agriculture.

Good taste in hairpins is shown by wearing those that are inconspicuous, both in size and texture.

In white or gray hair the gunmetal or silver pin studded with brilliant or semi-precious stones such as moonstones and opals look far better than gold pins, either plain or set with highly tinted stones.

Fringe Again

To the observing there is apparent the return of fringe to a high place in the scale of trimming, says the Philadelphia North American. Not only on hats, gowns and sashes, but on the parasols and even handbags does it appear.

Silk and linen fringes of narrow widths are used to outline hat brims and to trim the crowns of walking shoes. Wider fringe edges entire tunics and sashes, drapes bodices and emphasizes crossed lines on skirts. Head fringes, in glistening lines, shows the graceful result of a waving band of color on evening dresses, while knotted fringes, in many instances a foot deep, edging silk wraps and scarfs.

The modified forms of fringe are legion. The ball fringe for the linen suit is used by some designers, and the upholstery department of any store will answer all demands.

If you have any kind of fringe stored away bring it to the daylight, dye it or wash it and make use of it on spring and summer frocks. It is to have its day once again.

Needs Little Trimming

An inspection of the materials for summer wear shows that certain old-time, reliable materials have returned under new names, but our mothers will recognize their friends in the shape of the coarse lines that resemble "oatmeal cloth, hopsacking and the various basket weaves."

The feature that commends itself to many women is the fact that the weaves are so evident that it serves for decoration, and, therefore, requires very little other ornamentation. Simple braiding designs or buttons are generally sufficient for the morning dress, while the square meshes of these coarse fabrics form excellent backgrounds upon which designs in cross-stitching (done with woolen or linen threads) may be added.

When the individual touch of embroidery is added, these materials are excellent for afternoon wear, and although the design is more conventional than the trailing vines worked by the weavers of 50 years ago, the effect warrants the time expended in the construction.

Curtains as Keynote

The curtains are the keynote to a room and make or mar it; and here let us stand firm on the matter of shades—they are never necessary. Two sets of sash curtains hung one pair above the other and running transversely on cords, with rings close together or without rings, are prettier and more useful, for one can have the light from above or below as desired. Shot in the lower hem will keep the curtain in place. Country Life in America

Ironing Shirt Waists

When ironing a shirt waist, double the sleeve so that the hems can be ironed easily. Next the cuffs. Now finishing ironing the sleeves, one has a sleeve board that may simplify work. Next iron the collar or band. Now the under-arm portion of the waist over the end of the ironing board. In this way you get that part of the waist perfectly smooth. Fit the shoulder over the same part of the board. This will enable you to iron all the upper part of the waist and also all around the sleeve. This is done the rest is quite easy.

In Royal Purple Hue

The latest marabou scarf comes in a royal purple hue and is of the same width length as the familiar black, brown and blue. An ostrich feather collarette may also be obtained in this modish coloring.

Secret of Success in the Giving of Children's Parties

THE secret of giving a children's party is to keep it from being stiff. This expresses the whole thing in a nutshell, says the Toledo Times.

The party may be an elaborate affair on Fifth avenue and still be dull because there is no one who understands what "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" knew so well: how to put all the children at their ease. It is much easier to entertain very young children than miniature ladies and gentlemen between the ages of 10 and 15 who begin to feel slightly self-conscious and think about partners for the dancing.

The best way at a gathering of children is to start up games at once. Games are better than dancing to infuse a little spirit into a stiff little gathering like this. Unless a child is hopelessly priggish or formal, she will very soon forget herself in the interest of the game and the ice is broken in the beginning. Even if it's the old-fashioned drop-the-handkerchief or spin-the-plate or sick-him-in and sick-him-out, there are few children who will be scornful of the excitement and fun which are sure to follow, once the game gets started. In this way the children are obliged to get acquainted with each other, and by the time refreshments are served an entente cordiale will have been established.

These parties should be elaborate only in the amusing of the children. The children should not be overindulged and the food should be simple. Much money need not be spent for the entertainment. The children will enjoy games just as much as they would some costly amusement. A captive balloon, or a merry-go-round established on the front lawn will not give a bit more pleasure than just plain T-spy, if the right person be there to set the ball rolling.

PERFUMES LOVED BY WOMEN

THERE is something alluringly gracious and generous about scent; and the quest is a fascinating one, for treasure-trove is waiting modestly among the extracts of the humble flowers, and discreet inquirers will be rewarded by the discovery of unbacked odors, novel and delicious. An exquisite perfume, fresh and delicate, is made from common phlox, and if this or some other little known essence is chosen, soap, cream and powder should be purchased in the same scent, and sachets to fold away in bodices and glove boxes and among lingerie. A few drops in a small basin of water as a rinse for the latter will insure a delicate fragrance, refreshing and wholesome, says the London Daily Express.

All "scented" details must be related and allied in the same way that the filmy pearl of the conch shell proclaims its kinship with the rosy tints beneath, only one essence being used for all purposes. A carnation-scented sachet will kill the perfume of wood violet, and jasmine and heliotrope will quarrel in the most unflattering manner. One odor destroys another, and the mixture has a disagreeable effect.

Cheap scents are chemically produced, and although labeled as various flowers, contain no floral essences. They are neither nice nor wholesome, and leave a nauseous aftermath very repugnant to those who are familiar with the dainty sweetness of a true floral perfume.

Concentrated essences are very popular. They are economical, a single drop sufficing for the perfuming of a garment. The tiny vials are portable and handy for traveling and the scents do not "stale" or hang mustily about one's belongings.

Scent has always been beloved of women. The ancient Egyptians reveled in the rich essences which they extracted

To Save Tea Towels

Tea towels would last three times as long and look much whiter and neater if they were not used as lifters.

One housekeeper has broken her maids of this habit by providing them with a lifter that is always in evidence when it is needed.

She makes an eight-inch square of several thicknesses of old tea toweling, in which she slips a layer of asbestos paper or a thickness of canvas. The edges are turned in, stitched, and to one corner is fastened a long tape with buttonhole at other end.

By means of the buttonhole, the holder can be fastened to the button of the apron band and the lifter kept in the apron pocket until needed.

suits and they fasten all down the front with pearl buttons, both waist and skirt fastening this way in coat fashion. These are plain, narrow dresses made without plaits. They launder well and are altogether ideal garments for summer wear. A heavy china silk is used for these.

The Pierrot frill collars that have been so popular in Paris for some time past are now being shown in so many ordinary styles that almost any one can wear them less and less. Instead one sees the well-dressed woman wearing turned-down stiff collars. These collars are quite narrow and elaborately hand embroidered, and they are edged with a wide frill of lace, plaiting or embroidery. They are entirely different from the wide stiff turned-down collars that have been in vogue during past seasons, these new styles being just a narrow turned-down strip, and the wide frill of lace or embroidery is so wide that it almost covers the shoulders of the wearer.

These new stiff collars are accompanied by a wide flat bow of velvet either in black or in a bright color or to be more exclusive by a Paisley velvet bow.

Every neckwear department in Paris is making a big display of the long frill cuffs that everybody is wearing with the tailored linen suit. These are shown in lace, embroidery or hemstitched batiste and one can also buy the plaited lace and plaited hemstitching by the yard.

of cream, laying it upon the stain, then covering it with brown paper and pressing with a warm iron.

Ice cream-marks can be removed by this means but it must be applied at once.

A bottle of cologne is a most useful article, for it will take away smears if rubbed on as soon as they appear. It can be used alike on white or colored fabrics, cotton or woolen, without the slightest injury. Many persons make use of it all the year round, not exactly as a cleansing agent, but as an emergency. For instance, when a person is quite ready to go out and then detects some stain that has been overlooked when putting the garment away a rag saturated with cologne and applied will remedy the spot at least temporarily.

Grass stains yield to the cologne application, though a thorough bath in alcohol is perhaps more certain. Kerosene is another liquid that may be applied successfully to grass stains, while some recommended covering the spots with a paste made from cream of tartar and water. This should not be used in the case of colored goods, as the color is likely to disappear.

Rub fresh paint with a rag dipped in spirits of turpentine, and if this is not forthcoming rub the soiled part with both hands, as though the fabric were being washed.

Ink can be taken from white goods with tomatoes if applied freely. Cold milk is good when the stains are fresh, changing the milk as often as necessary.

Cutting Laundry Bills

While never for one moment should the up-to-date girl be anything but freshly laundered, stiff and crisp with starch and snowy from head to foot, yet there are many ways in which she can economize in her laundry. For instance, she should not wear white waists but those of voile, the color of her suit. The voile blouses need not be lined, as the transparent effect is most smart just now.

Her petticoats should be of silk whenever possible, as silk sheds the dust, while linen accumulates it. Even one silk skirt to match every gown if made at home is not extravagant compared to paying laundry rates on white petticoats or even taking the time of the servant from more important things.

Collars and jabots should be ironed by the girl herself on a small ironing board. She can starch them in cold starch and iron while wet, using a cloth between the iron and the wet article.

Ribbed shirts and stockings should always be washed at home, which leaves practically only the combination suits and nightgowns to be sent to the laundry.

A dark linen gown if smartly made and relieved with white collars and cuffs is often quite as elegant as a light one and wears twice as well. Do not wear white belts. Have a narrow one of the same material sewed to your tailor made skirt.—New Haven Journal Courier.

Household Helps

Enamelled ware which has become discolored can be cleaned with a paste made of coarse salt and vinegar.

Valuable lace should be kept wrapped in blue paper. White paper is often bleached with chloride of lime, which injuriously affects any delicate fabric which lies against it any length of time.

Many families will endure a squeaking hinge for weeks, when one application of machine oil or a little heated lard will result in perfect silence.

To clean stained flower vases put a little vinegar in a glass and then some soap powder. Shake the glass till the stains are removed, then wash in warm water. The vinegar and soap powder can be used for several glasses.—Buffalo Commercial.

The Care of Milk

Milk and butter should be most carefully protected from heat, dust and odors. The utensils in which milk is kept should be used for nothing else and should be washed with scrupulous care. Never put molasses, vinegar or any other substance into a milk jar. Milk and butter easily absorb the odor of vegetables, cheese or fish, so that these articles should not be placed near to either in the ice chest.

DON'TS WHEN DRESSING

WHEN you are placing on the chemise or gilette, do not forget to fasten the belt at the back and in the front. This insures a smoothness of fit.

Don't neglect the back of the collar. Pin the fancy pins in perfectly straight lines, and see that the top edge is unbroken at the hem.

Look at the belt line to see if perfect neatness prevails. Don't think that the slight suggestion of the band on the blouse will not be noticed. It will 10 chances to 1 be pulled into view with the movements of your arms.

Nothing is more careless than a badly hooked opening on a skirt, either back, front or side. Do not neglect to have a sufficient number of fasteners. Attend to them, so that there will be no gap, due to a lack of time on mending day.

Don't allow threads or raw edges to destroy the appearance of the dress. Take a little time to overcast or clip; it will pay.

Last of all, don't hesitate to ask your daughter or your mother or your sister to take a view of you before you leave. Many moments of discomfort will be saved, and the assurance of one of the family—and andor is generally a family trait—will do much toward promoting a satisfaction that makes for enjoyment.—Philadelphia North American.

Women Workers at Panama

Two hundred and five women postal positions on the isthmus as nurses, postal clerks, stenographers and teachers. They have aided materially in maintaining the esprit de corps of the working force. Women's clubs and social evenings have helped to while away the loneliness of life on the Zone. Every Saturday evening there are social gatherings, dances and balls, in nearly all of the 23 towns along the canal.—National Magazine.

Flower and Foliage Decorations

THERE is as much necessity for blending between flowers and vases as in materials for a garment.

As a rule, garden flowers are most perfectly in accord with china. The stems of the majority are not decorative, as is the case with roses. A transparent receptacle does not add to their beauty, and color below them and a gay design, far from detracting, increases their general note of gaiety.

Nasturtiums are suited to colored glass bowls, and should always be placed in low dishes having a broad surface. The stems are too short to handle them effectively except as a mass of color. As separate blossoms they do not count. If the basin used for short-stemmed flowers is large they will be more graceful and less jumbled if another jar is placed in the center to give height.

A tall tumbler is suitable, the idea being to prevent monotony of surface. The glass or vase must be filled with water and placed in the bowl. It is concealed by the gay colors of the flowers in the basin, while those in the glass tower a little above.

Brass and copper filled with flowers are excellent for decorative purposes. Mignonette, for example, looks so attractive as when in highly polished copper. The green blends in harmony with the pink brown of the metal, making a color note in the room that cannot be overlooked.

A mistake made by the average person in arranging flowers in a vase is to use too many in one receptacle. Each bloom should be put in separately, with an eye to symmetry.

Very few women there are who recognize the decorative possibilities of foliage. In fact, it is surprising how little emancipated the most of us still are from the old rural idea that a real bouquet must be stripped of all its foliage, tied together tightly and then jammed down into a vase.

In this respect Paris can teach us much. For there exists in that city a leaf market, and there is no limit to the esteem with which the artistic Frenchwoman regards foliage. Great vases of glossy leaves and graceful boughs, unadorned with flowers, stand in prominent places in her drawing rooms, and often a branch of foliage is placed over her pictures.—Philadelphia Times.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you see the

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3 burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Good Whitewash

Good whitewash is made as follows: Stir 6 pounds of whiting into cold water, avoiding all lumps. Steep 3 ounces of glue in cold water for 12 hours, then heat it until it is dissolved and pour it into the whiting, which must be hot. The wash should be of a consistency to be applied with a whitewash brush.

SAILOR SUIT.

The sailor suit is always a becoming one to young girls and small women and always in demand.

This one can be made just as illustrated or without the yoke on blouse and skirt as preferred. Also the sleeves can be cut off to three-quarter length as shown in the small view and the collar can be finished with a round outline. Serge makes this dress, and it is trimmed with banding while the shield is of white, but costumes of this sort are pretty for linen and poplin, and even for the thinner washable materials as well as for wool. Soft finished pique or linen in blue with bands and shield of white would be exceedingly smart. The skirt is seven eighths and plaited. When the yoke is used it is cut off and joined to the lower edge.

The quantity of material required for the 16-year, size is 11½ yards 24 or 27, 6½ yards 44 or 52 inches wide, 2½ yards of wide, 4½ yards of narrow braid, ½ yard 27 inches wide for the shield.

The pattern, No. 6632, may be had in sizes for girls of 14, 16 and 18 years of age and can be obtained at any May Manton agency or will be mailed to any address on receipt of price (10c). Address 132 East Twenty-third street, New York; or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

SOME TRIED RECIPES.

CARROT SOUP.
This soup is a puree of carrots and easy to prepare. Prepare 6 fine carrots, a large onion, cut them in fine slices, put a lump of butter the size of an egg in a small pan, then add the minced vegetable. Shake this over the fire until the vegetables are colored well but not brown. Add 3 pints of water and season. When the vegetables are cooked press them through a sieve, then return them to the same pan and add hot water or stock to give the desired consistency. Cut a number of small squares of bread, at least half an inch thick, melt a tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan, put the pieces of bread in the butter when hot and shake over the fire until brown. Pour the soup over the squares of bread and serve. If a very rich soup is desired use rich stock.

FRICASSEE OF CHICKEN WITH RICE.
Have a fat chicken cut into the usual pieces and brown it delicately in drippings or lard with salt and pepper. Take the chicken from the pan in which it sautéed and turn into the pan with the remaining brown fat a finely minced onion. Brown this carefully and add parsley, half a clove of garlic mashed fine, a crushed piece of bay leaf and a tomato cut fine. Return the chicken to the pan with a tablespoonful of butter and stew all together very slowly for 15 or 20 minutes. Turn in 2 cupsful of hot water and simmer until the chicken is tender. Serve the chicken in the center of a platter with rice around the edge in a ring. Half a can of mushrooms may be added at the last.

ASPARAGUS WITH VINAIGRETTE DRESSING.

For this popular dish, the asparagus is boiled as usual, then drained, chilled and served with a sauce made in this way: Mix together salt and pepper to season; then add vinegar, with a few finely minced herbs, like chives, mint or parsley, and olive oil to suit the taste. Most people like twice as much oil as vinegar; but that is as you will.

AN APPLE SOUFFLE.

Baked puddings are necessary to the happiness of many men. Pare, core and stew four tart apples in just enough water to prevent burning. Pass through sieve. Put teaspoon butter into a saucepan, add four tablespoons cornstarch and tablespoon flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, four tablespoons cold water. Stir and cook until clear. Add cupful hot apple pulp sweetened to taste and one teaspoon lemon juice.

Remove from fire and add three well-beaten yolks of eggs; then cut and fold in the well beaten whites.

Pour into buttered baking dish and bake until puffed and delicately brown. Serve at once.

BREAKFAST ROLLS.

Sift a quart of flour and stir into it a saltspoonful of sugar, a cup of warm milk, two tablespoonfuls of melted shortening and two beaten eggs. Dissolve a quarter of a cake of compressed yeast in a little warm milk and beat in last of all. Set the dough in a bowl to rise until morning. Early in the morning make lightly and quickly into rolls and set to rise near the range for 20 minutes.

GOWNS FOR BALLROOM

BALLROOMS this season will gain in interest from the appearance of many quaint picture dresses in simple and eminently becoming styles, and a very charming design for the purpose consists of soft ivory-white chiffon or net with insertions of antique lace and a wreath of small pink roses where the skirt is gathered. The bodice should be veiled with a choice piece of antique lace of a sufficient deep tone to make a distinct contrast with the ivory-white dress, and the waist belt might be eggshell-blue satin which always looks well with pale pink roses. A band of pale blue chiffon or soft satin round the corsage could have an antique gold buckle set with pearls.

An equally dainty effect might be produced with pale-colored chiffon and cream or fine white lace insertions. Light mauve, sky blue, or a tender leaf green would all make a good background for the floral trimmings, such as pale blue forget-me-nots, jessamine, hydrangeas, lilies of the valley, violets, or pansies, says the Chicago Record-Herald. A pure white dress of tulle might have the lace trimmings mounted on fine silver tinsel gauze to show up the design and give a glistening effect, or the design could be carried out in soft lace net, either in white, cream or black with pearl or jet trimmings instead of the flowers.

Way of Restoring a New Look to the Worn Furniture

WHEN chairs and tables show signs of much wear, it is time they were renovated, and, if the work is well done, the furniture will look as handsome as when new.

There are some important points that one should know about, of course, before undertaking to restore the new look to the dented and lusterless surface of the chairs and tables. A smooth satin finish, or wax finish, has largely taken the place of the highly varnished surface in the homes of refined people.

We put an old, worn table of finely proportioned colonial style into good condition with a few hours' work. The first move was to scour the table all over with hot soapsuds, to give it a clean surface. A rinsing with clear warm water followed.

For the next step we used powdered pumice stone, mixed with water. With a brush, dipped in this mixture, we went over the surface with forceful strokes, to smooth down any lingering traces of varnish, defects in the wood, and so on.

Varnishing the surface came next, applied first with the grain of the wood, then across the grain, and finally, with the third going over, streaking it on along the lines of least resistance. This coating of varnish filled up the dents, obliterated the scratches, and prepared the surface for the next process.

This varnish dried in a short time, when it was removed with pumice powder that had been mixed with linseed oil. This combination gave a wonderful result—a dull smoothness that brought the table almost up to the standard of new furniture. The mixture was distributed with a stiff brush in a circular motion.

The wax finish was given with an application of oil, rubbed in with a piece of soft felt. It is best to use as little oil as possible—just enough to work into the wood nicely. With the last rubover, using a dry flannel cloth, the excess of oil, if there is any, is absorbed in the flannel.

This simple method for cleaning, and giving a wax finish, may be used with good results on all pieces of wooden furniture.—Los Angeles Herald.

HARVARD'S BIPLANE TRIAL SET FOR EARLY THURSDAY MORNING

Harvard I, the biplane of the Harvard Aeronautical Society, which was damaged in an unannounced preliminary trial shortly after dark Tuesday evening, will be used in another attempted flight Thursday morning at between 4 and 5 o'clock, provided Director J. V. Martin of the society, with the assistance of S. L. Sanders, who has had a large part in the assembling of the machine, can repair the damage in time.

The flight planned for this morning was postponed because the mishap of the previous evening had put the biplane temporarily out of commission. Two members of the club sleep in the aerodrome on Soldiers field to prevent any meddling with the biplane.

The aeroplane, with Director J. V. Martin at the helm, was rolled out in the evening and was headed for the opposite side of Soldiers field, about a quarter of a mile away. It had gone but 50 yards when it was seen that it was heading for a marshy dump on one side of the field where the process of reclaiming the land is going on. The brakes had not been wholly completed, as it had not been contemplated to try a flight in the air until this morning.

Mr. Martin seemed powerless to stop the biplane. It struck the dump head-on and careened from side to side. The propeller was stopped as quickly as possible by the helmsman. Both front wheels were torn off the skids and the attachment wrenched apart. One skid was badly twisted and completely turned, while the other was forced upward. Director Martin was not thrown from his seat and was unhurt.

ATTLEBORO, Mass.—Sidney Borman of 17 Maple street is building an aeroplane. A short time ago he exhibited a model upon which he had been working for nearly a year, and accepted an offer Monday. It is to be a monoplane, and contains several new features.

There will be two large wings, similar to those used on the Wright and Curtiss machines, but they will be placed one behind the other on top of the machine. Power will be furnished by a 40-horsepower gasoline engine of standard pattern.

The controlling mechanism is the part upon which he has devoted most of his time, and to all appearances it is a clever device. The main wings will have a spread of 32 feet. Mr. Borman expects to have it completed in about six weeks. It is to be built in Attleboro, and the actual cost will be about $2,000.

Aviator Mars Attempting Topeka-Kansas City Trip

TOPEKA, Kan.—J. C. Mars, driving the Curtiss biplane "Skyhawk," left Topeka at 5:10 a. m. today, starting his flight to Kansas City.

Mr. Mars intends to land at Overland Park, a suburb of Kansas City. He is allowed two stops, one at Olathe and the other at Lawrence, Kan.

The start was made under ideal conditions. Hardly enough wind was blowing to stir the leaves of the trees about the aviation field. A big crowd was on hand to see Mr. Mars off and after preliminary tinkering with his engine he got away to a fine start, sailing due east.

After flying about 10 minutes, Mr. Mars landed at a farmhouse, saying he wanted to get a fresh start. His engines were working in fine shape at this time, but after passing Newman, 14 miles from Topeka, he descended again. The engines were working badly but he resumed his flight within a few minutes.

After passing Perry, Kas., Mr. Mars landed again at Vinland, a village just north of Lawrence, Kas., at 8:30 o'clock. He was still having trouble with the engines. This was his third stop. The prize offered for the flight is $5,000.

MR. TAFT ON FLYING JAUNT WEST TODAY TO MAKE SPEECHES

WASHINGTON—President Taft is on the road again today. At an early hour he boarded the train for Marietta, O., on the second of his college commencement jaunts. He arranged to deliver two addresses in the late afternoon and will then whisk back to Washington.

The executive will be the central figure in the celebration of the anniversary of the founding of Muskingum Academy in 1797, at Muskingum park. The academy was the first classical school in the then northwest territory. The President will deliver a short address at the formal exercises. Later he will receive a degree at the Congregational church and will say a word about higher education in the Northwest. The Masons will next be President Taft's hosts. En route home, late this evening, he will stop long enough in Parkersburg to greet the people of that West Virginia city.

MR. GARDNER NOT TO WITHDRAW. AUGUSTA, Me.—Obadiah Gardner announces that his name will be presented to the Democratic convention for the party nomination for Governor. It is believed, however, that Mayor Plaisted of this city will be nominated.

Boston Boats Using Oil as Fuel

Steamships Harvard and Yale of New York line find it cleaner and more dependable than coal.

STEAMSHIP HARVARD TAKING ON FUEL OIL.

Receiving a supply from Standard Oil barge at New York pier; capacity, 100,000 gallons which gives a steaming radius of 650 miles.

NEW YORK—Burning oil as fuel on passenger steamships, although past the experimental stage, is yet in its infancy, and among the pioneers to discard coal are the Harvard and Yale of the Metropolitan line, plying between this port and Boston. These ships were the first to use the turbine type of engines on the Atlantic coast, and now they have tested out satisfactorily with a cleaner and more dependable fuel.

Some of the advantages claimed for oil as fuel are as follows: The steaming time between various points becomes a fixed factor because of steady pressure maintained; cleanliness of the ships, their decks, saloons, etc., which is almost impossible when coal is used as fuel; elimination of smoke; a large reduction in labor and consequent economy of operation due to the passing of the stokers; increase of steaming radius; lengthening of the life of the boilers; lack of necessity of cleaning fires and consequent lessening of speed; more equal distribution of heat in the combustion chamber; diminished loss of heat through the funnels; economy of fuel space and freedom from the activity of heat, with consequent release of fire room and boiler activities while in port.

FEDERAL COURT DISSOLVES INJUNCTION OF THE WRIGHTS

NEW YORK—Orville and Wilbur

Wright have lost a point in their court fight to protect the patents covering their aeroplane from alleged infringements by Glenn H. Curtiss and Louis Paulhan, the French aviator. By unanimous decision the U. S. court of appeals Tuesday vacated the temporary injunctions obtained by the Wright Company against Mr. Paulhan and the Herring-Curtiss Company, pending trial of suits which will determine whether there is any infringement in fact.

OTTAWA, Ont.—The International Aviation Association, Limited, is the title of a new $100,000 company just incorporated by the Dominion government with its headquarters at Montreal. It is the first business enterprise of the kind in Canada. The company will manufacture aeroplanes, balloons and devices for traveling in the air.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass.—A. L. Plitzner of Hammondport, N. Y., Tuesday night eclipsed all New England records in an aeroplane when in the Herring-Burgess biplane "Flying Fish" he flew from the Plum island aviation grounds to a field in Rowley, a distance of over six miles.

GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATION HELD BY ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER

WARREN, Mass.—A special attraction in connection with the semi-centennial of King Solomon R. A. chapter Tuesday night in the Masonic hall was an official and fraternal visit from Most Excellent Charles D. Burrage, G. H. P., and suite.

With him were Right Excellent George M. Rice, P. G. K.; Right Excellent Clifford B. Arnold, D. D. G. H. P. of fourth district, and Robert W. Browning, D. D. G. H. P., sixth district; Fred M. Sampson, P. D. G. H. P., fourth district; C. L. Wade, H. P., and Byram Woodhead, P. H. P., Hampden chapter, Harry P. Oldham, H. P., of Doric chapter, and Charles E. Moss as G. C. of H.

The escorting committee consisted of George H. Coolidge, Arthur F. Butterworth, Samuel N. Cutler and Alfred C. White, P. H. P. John P. Canfield, M. E. H. P., extended the heartiest of greetings on behalf of the chapter.

Grand High Priest Burrage expressed his delight at being permitted to join in the golden jubilee and wished all prosperity to the chapter in the years to come. At the request of the donors, High Priest Canfield and Secretary Perkins, he presented an elegant ebony gavel to the chapter.

Adjournment was made to Memorial hall for the banquet. The historical sketch by Past High Priest Charles D. Perkins traced the 50 years of the chapter in a comprehensive way. It was started at Enfield in 1859 and the charter was granted just 50 years ago. In 1884 the location was changed to Warren and May 13, 1889, the first convocation was held in Warren. The membership is now 165.

The present officers are: John B. Canfield, M. E. H. P.; Joseph G. Hastings, E. K.; Herbert R. Burroughs, E. S.; Henry S. Howe, treasurer; Charles D. Perkins, secretary; Elmer A. Lincoln, C. of H.; the Rev. Oliver L. Darling, chaplain; Edgar J. Buck, P. S.; Edward M. Houghton, R. A. C.; William Robertson, M. 2d V., George A. Johnson, M. 2d V.; Fred W. Lyman, M. 1st V.; Howard W. Tuttle, S. S.; George H. Burbank, J. S., and Lucian W. Gilbert, Tyler.

There's plenty of room between the building lines of Broadway for my biplane," he said, "and I'll make the whole trip just clearing the trolley cars. The two rivers make this city almost an ideal place in which to fly, for it isn't much of a trick to strike water which one has to if the water is only near enough at hand."

The start was made by a run on the skids and an ascent at a speed estimated at 60 miles an hour.

MR. KNOX DECLARES PEACE THE KEYNOTE OF OUR DIPLOMACY

to advance the brotherhood of nations."

He said: "We have indeed, as is right, firmly maintained our national sovereignty and dignity and the rights of our citizens, and we have not avoided war when honor and duty have invoked that stern arbitrament. Nevertheless we have loyally submitted ourselves to the control of the ideals of peace and to the principles of international comity and good will; and we have exerted our influence and good offices to guide and aid others along that path. We have not, indeed, stood alone in this attitude, but have acted in concert with other powers who recognize the same high call and seek the same great ends."

"From the ages when barbarism and cruelty dominated the world, through the intervening years when advancing civilization slowly extended to relations between states the forces of enlightened and beneficent private conduct, we have reached a point when it is evident that the future holds in store a time when wars shall cease; when the nations of the world shall realize a federation as real and vital as that now existing between the component parts of a single state; when by deliberate international conjunction the strong shall universally help the weak, and when the corporate righteousness of the world shall compel unrighteousness to disappear and shall destroy the habitations of cruelty still lingering in the dark places of the earth."

"This is 'the spirit of the wide world brooding on things to come.' That day will be the millennium, of course; but in some sense and degree it will surely be realized in this dispensation of mortal time."

"It is for this country always to maintain its historic policy and attitude, to be true to this greatest duty of a nation, which is entirely consistent with all its internal duties, to advance that time which the whole course of history and all divine prophecies and revelations alike presage."

In his review Mr. Knox said in part:

"The efforts of the American delegation at the second Hague conference resulted in the re adoption in an extended and amended form of the convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes, as well as the framing and adoption of a convention for an international court of prize. But the conference also went considerably further and recommended to the nations of the world the establishment of a court of arbitration in accordance with the fundamental idea of the plan submitted to the first conference at the instance of Secretary Hay—that the court should be always open—a court which could not only be permanent but continuous in its functions."

"The general plan of this tribunal, which was elaborated by the American, British and German delegates, with the hearty cooperation and support of the French, incorporated, in addition to the fundamental idea of permanence adopted from the Hay plan, the fundamental principles and procedure embodied in the conventions for the pacific settlement of international disputes and for the establishment of the international court of prize. Inasmuch as it thus contained only such provisions as had in essence already been adopted by the powers in the two conventions above named, the government of the United States, conceiving that there could be no objection to adopting the machinery of the international prize court for the permanent court of arbitration, issued on Oct. 18, 1909, an identical circular note proposing to the powers alternative procedure for the international prize court and the investment of the international prize court with the functions of a court of arbitral justice. This proposition has been most favorably received by the powers, and it is confidently expected that the initiative of the United States will lead to the early establishment at The Hague of a permanent court of arbitration."

"From the very commencement of our intercourse with China, American diplomacy in that empire has been marked by a just regard for the rights of China as a sovereign power and has consistently aimed to promote the interests of the Chinese people no less than those of our own. In spite of many mutual misunderstandings and the insistent desire of Americans in China that their government should cooperate in the warlike measures of other governments, we have adhered steadfastly to the belief that a policy of patience and peace was the only correct one; that the difficulties in the way of cordial intercourse were chiefly due to differences of manners and customs; and that only time was needed to establish mutual confidence."

"The modern progress of Japan, which began with the arrival of Commodore Perry, has been influenced and assisted at every stage by the disinterested friendship of the United States. Japan's earliest attempts at a reorganized government were based upon the American model, and American ideals shaped her educational and financial institutions. American advisers assisted in the development of agriculture, a postal system and foreign intercourse."

"The American policy in the near east has, as elsewhere, been entirely open and free from sinister endeavors. The work of our diplomatic and consular representatives has been devoted to the protection of American citizens and their property, and the peaceful extension of American commerce."

He referred to South America as "the most active sphere of American

NEW YORK—The latest action of the beef trust in raising the price of beef to the highest point ever known in time of peace was declared an outrage on the public by members of the United Master Butchers Association of the state of New York at their annual session Tuesday in the Park Avenue hotel.

The price was fixed by the trust at 12 1/2 cents and many wholesalers were obliged to pay 13 cents a pound. One year ago this month the price was 9 1/2 cents.

The steady boosting of prices by packers led to sharp arraignment of trust methods by various speakers and the adoption of this resolution:

Resolved, That we demand the elimination of the tariff on animals used as human food, and that we attribute the higher cost of living to a great extent to the tariff on the necessities of life and principally that on meats.

Other resolutions demanded the abrogation of the 10 cents per pound tariff on oleomargarine and offered the cooperation of the association to all officials interested in securing for the public honest weights and measures.

CROCKER MANDAMUS DISMISSED

The writ of mandamus brought by George U. Crocker, ex-city treasurer, and others against the justices of the superior court seeking to compel the defendants to hear facts relating to a motion for a change of venue for the trial of the indictment against them and to determine the same, was dismissed by Judge Arthur P. Rugg of the supreme court late Tuesday.

"The invariable fervid and inherent sentiment for self-government," he said, "has had a large part in this government's sympathy with the recent ejection by their own long-suffering fellow-countrymen of such tyrants as Castro, Zelaya, and Zelaya, whose cruel misgovernment it is hoped will soon be succeeded by a government really responsible and republican."

Discussing Canada, he said: "The spirit of good neighborhood and of mutual helpfulness, consideration and confidence has always made possible to our diplomacy the settlement with a minimum of friction of the great variety of questions which geographical proximity has from time to time raised between us and our Canadian kinsmen."

FIVE CENTS AN ACRE LAND RISES TO $200 THROUGH IRRIGATION

SPOKANE, Wash.—Eleven thousand acres of land in the Yakima valley, in central Washington, composing the first unit of the federal government's Tieton irrigation project on 35,000 acres, was formally opened at a celebration under the direction of the North Yakima Commercial Club a few days ago.

The main canal, built of concrete, is 12 miles in length, the other work, including six tunnels through solid rock 11,000 feet, seven main laterals and numerous branches.

The land, which was formerly leased for 5 cents an acre a year, now has an average value of $200 an acre and will be worth from $500 to $1000 an acre when the apple and other fruit trees come into full bearing. The second unit of 9,000 acres will be opened next spring, the third unit, covering 15,000 acres, to be ready in 1912. The cost of the entire project is estimated at $3,000,000.

THE HOME FORUM

International Copyright

IT is an axiom nowadays that every man is entitled to a fair remuneration for his labors, whether manual or mental, and that the individual who is the channel by which some new idea comes to mankind should derive benefit himself from that which brings benefit to others. It is this principle which supports the various patent and copyright acts, which at present protect legally rights which will in due time be protected by the moral sense of men and nations. Every civilized nation has its copyright laws, and though these should present little difficulty in the country of the author or composer, as the case may be, still the question becomes naturally more complex where other countries are concerned.

It was doubtless with a view to giving the intellectual workers of the world a wider safeguard of their rights that the various international conferences were summoned; and in this connection a correspondent of the London Standard, reviewing the position of affairs with regard to the question of international copyright, points out that the first attempt to place the matter on a satisfactory basis was the Berne convention, signed in 1886.

Before many years, however, a second convention was considered necessary, and in 1896 the declaration and agreement of Paris was signed. Finally, in the year 1908, came the Berlin convention, which has taken the place of the two which preceded it. It was drawn up by representatives of the following countries: Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Luxembourg, Monaco, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and Tunis. These representatives were real experts, and the result of their labors may be looked upon as the outcome of the difficulties encountered, in the matter of copyright, by the authors, dramatists, and composers of a large number of civilized countries.

The convention enlarges the sphere of protection, bringing within its scope branches of activity which were formerly left unprotected; it does away with any complicated system of registration; and it prolongs the period for which copyright is granted. It covers all translations, adaptations, and alterations of literary, musical, and dramatic works, giving the authors and composers a full control over the product of their intellectual activities.

Slower, Sweet June

Slower! sweet June,
Each step more slow;
Linger and loiter as you go;
Linger a little while to dream,
Or see yourself in yonder stream,
Fly not across the summer so,
Sweet June! be slow.

Slower! sweet June,
Oh, slower yet;
It is so long since we have met,
So long ere we shall meet again;
Let the few days that still remain
Be longer, longer as they flow,
Sweet June! be slow.

Slower! sweet June,
Yes, wait awhile;
The meadow stars look up and smile
That you are here; the grasses bend
Their heads to greet their dearest friend,
And say, "She taught us how to grow."
Sweet June! be slow.

Slower! sweet June,
Your footsteps bear
An echoing gladness everywhere;
The robin hears it in his nest
And answers, "June, dear June, is best."
The rippling brooks your presence know.
Sweet June! be slow.

Slower! sweet June,
Turn on your track
And send your fragrant blossoms back;
Give me one violet more, I pray;
One apple bloom, one lily spray;
Teach me more roselike how to blow.
Sweet June! be slow.
—Julia H. May.

A TOWN ON WHEELS

HUNTERS, COLUMBIA RIVER, WASHINGTON.
Town which is to be moved two miles to a site on the railroad.

MOVING day on a large scale is promised for a certain thriving farming and orchard town in the upper Columbia river district, 50 miles north-west of Spokane. It is named Hunters, and the whole town will be moved bodily two miles to the new survey of the Great Northern railroad, to be completed within the next 12 months. Preliminary plans have been made to put the town on wheels and transport the stores and residences to the new location, which is near the Columbia river. Thus will be had direct communication with Spokane and other cities in eastern and central Washington. The present town-site will be plowed and planted to apple and other fruit trees. The orchards and grain and hay fields will not be disturbed, but instead the farmers are planning to build a 60-foot macadamized road two miles in length to connect with the new town. Hunters has a population of between 350 and 400, and is growing rapidly, being within 10 miles of the Spokane Indian reservation, which was opened to settlement a short time ago.

A Practical Method

THE signs of the times are pointing in no uncertain way to a great and constantly increasing appreciation of the unity of good and its presence and power as a stimulus and protection to all mankind. Universal interest in the subject of peace, the plans for international arbitration conferences and treaties, the space given in current magazines to the subject of reform, civic and social; certain periodicals taking as their chief aim the teaching of moral idealism—all these activities indicate a widespread and ever increasing faith in good and its expression; and show that the operation of the law of Love in the human consciousness is becoming more and more manifest; that much fear, malice, hatred, resentment and uncharitableness are being dropped in the concern for the general welfare of mankind.

Pleading for the substitution of law for war, ex-President Roosevelt in his address before the Nobel committee at Christiania said: "Our words must be judged by our deeds, and in striving for a lofty ideal we must use practical methods." No one will subscribe to this sentiment with more sincerity and enthusiasm than the Christian Scientist, for it is the amalgamation of the lofty ideal of Christianity and the practical method of Science which Christian Science presents that has aroused his enthusiasm for and devotion to this teaching. It is becoming more and more apparent to us that in our striving toward ideal conditions it is necessary to search for an exact and unerring Principle by which to work out our salvation. It would seem ridiculous and inexcusably stupid if in mathematics for instance we attempted to work out a problem without an accurate knowledge of the principle and rule involved. The Science of being is as exact as mathematics. It is in the emphasis put upon this fact that Christian Science is working such a revolution in the lives of those who follow its teachings.

Its rule insists upon the activity of right ideas in the consciousness of man, and its law is the unerring law of intelligence which excludes all error, injustice, discord, and in fact, everything which does not make for law, order and harmony.

A glance at the life of Jesus convinces one that his title, "The Prince of Peace," belongs to him preeminently. Nothing but a transcendent sense of the immanence and availability of good could have bestowed the poise and authority that we observe in all his dealings with men and conditions. It is evident therefore that "on earth peace, good will toward men" (Luke ii. 14) will increase as our knowledge of good and its operation increases.

A study of the familiar truths of the Bible in the light of an understanding of the potency of divine Love, its allness and its present activity in the consciousness of man in his image and likeness, provides wonderful enlightenment and illumination. We discover one statement after another of the evidence of God's power to overcome and destroy evil, and we find that this power is the present, substantial activity in the consciousness of man, acknowledging and glorifying the one God, that puts to flight the pretensions of discord and evil, revealing them as illusory, unreal and temporal. Our experience will touch the ideal and accomplish a change of evidence in the degree that we understand the principle of good, apply its rule and expect its operation in our behalf. Thus we will discover that faith in good which emerges into spiritual understanding, and will find, moreover, a reason for the faith that is in us.

Mrs. Eddy says in Science and Health (p. 340): "The divine Principle of the First Commandment bases the Science of being, by which man demonstrates health, holiness, and life eternal. One infinite God, good, unified, men and nations; constitutes the brotherhood of man; ends wars; fulfills the Scripture, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself'; annihilates pagan and Christian idolatry; whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes; equalizes the sexes; annuls the curse on man, and leaves nothing that can sin, suffer, be punished or destroyed."

Thus Christian Science presents a "practical method of striving for a lofty ideal." It is also a method available to every one of God's children. Whether man consciously recognizes it or not the fact remains that divine Love in its majestic order will overturn and overturn until "He come whose right it is" (Ezek. xli, 27). It is a blessing and consolation to know that for the individual to understand this and continue in this consciousness will hasten the dawn of universal peace.

No star is ever lost we once have seen,
We always may be what we might have been.
Since good, though only thought,
Has life and breath,
God's life can always be redeemed from death;
And evil in its nature, is decay,
And any hour can blot it all away;
The hopes that lost in some far distance seem,
May be the truer life, and this the dream.

A Prince May Be a Commoner

When Edward VII. ascended the throne his eldest son was Duke of York. But had he not been known as Duke of York he would immediately have become Duke of Cornwall. The dukedom of Cornwall is the appendage of the eldest sons of our monarchs, who are not born Princes of Wales, but only so created. Little Prince Edward now becomes Duke of Cornwall, and it is because the King's eldest son is born Duke of Cornwall that he is not a commoner. We are very conservative in England, but we have also always been very democratic. You may be a "prince"—that is, a member of the sovereign's immediate family—and yet not be a peer of the realm, and if you are not a peer or peeress of the realm you are a commoner, says the Westminster Gazette.

Cosette's Doll

In a famous book by Victor Hugo, a great French writer, is the story of the little girl Cosette. We first see her going out after a pail of water to the spring beyond the town. She stops to look longingly into a shop window at a wonderful doll. The doll had a white wig all nicely pompadoured like the ladies of that day, and a pink satin skirt edged with pearl beads. Her chubby face was pink and real teeth showed between her rosy lips. She could shut her eyes, one was sure. Cosette longed to hold her in her arms and watch her eyes fall shut as if in sleep.

On her way back from the spring a tall stranger overtook her and helped her carry her heavy pail. She told him that she had to work all day long for the woman in whose house she lived. He asked, "Do you ever play, child?" She said, "The little girls of my mistress play all day; they have beautiful playthings."

"But do you never play?"
"Sometimes, sir, a little; I have a little lead sword as long as that," and she showed him her forefinger.

"But it will cut nothing," he said.

"O, yes," said Cosette, "it will cut lettuce."

Then they went into the house, for it was an inn where the traveler was to spend the night. Cosette saw lying on the floor the doll belonging to the child dren of the house. She took it up in her arms very carefully. Her mistress turned and told her sharply to put the doll down at once. Then Cosette laid it down again and just sat looking at the doll, O, so longingly. In a moment, what do you think happened? The traveler stepped out on to the street and returned with the wonderful pink lady doll from the shop across the way. He held it out toward Cosette. "Take it; it is for you," he said. Cosette did not dare to take the doll till the master of the inn, who had now come in, told her she might do so. Then she sat hugging the dolly up to her ragged, dirty dress with a great joy in her heart. And the story goes on to show how the traveler took Cosette away from the people who lived her work so hard, and how she lived with him ever after as his own daughter, and had love and happiness instead of trouble and loneliness.

The Cape-to-Cairo Railway

THE white peoples of Africa, sparse and scattered as they are, have much to be proud of in the matter of railway development, and especially so in the sub-continent. But when all is said and done the line known as the Cape-to-Cairo railway—popularly supposed to be the conception of Cecil Rhodes—is still the most fascinating and most "fancied" of all the lines in Africa.

The object of that railway is not, as Rhodes himself once pointed out, to enable a human being to get in from Cape Town and get out at Cairo. Rather it is "to cut Africa through the center." So that the railway "will pick up trade all along the route. The junctions to the east and west coasts, which will occur in the future, will be outlets for the traffic obtained along the routes of the line as it passes through the center of Africa."

And slowly, but none the less surely, that cutting process is still going on to the chagrin of those who predicted a dismal failure of the whole scheme and

Chinese Business Honesty

With due respect for others, the Chinaman is perhaps the most honorable and upright business man in the world today. His business principles are founded entirely upon honesty, and he adheres to his policy with insistence. Some Whys of Men's Coats

DID you ever ask a man why the coat he wears is as it is? In all probability he would answer just as any woman would, "Oh, just because!" It so happens, nevertheless, that man, because he has chosen a simple coat, can trace the evolution and consequently the reason for the most of the unnecessary of his garment. But who would care for a like task with a woman's coat?

How comes it then that a man has cuffs on his sleeves and buttons serving no purpose? For an explanation we must hark back to the seventeenth century, when great sums were expended on the coat, not only on the quality but also on the quantity of material. Large sleeves, wide at the bottom, were much in vogue, in most cases of such length as to make it impossible to use the hands for any work whatever. Consequently they were often turned back, and, for convenience, buttons were later placed on the sleeve to hold the part once flowing, and the first cuffs thus made their appearance. The new device proved very practicable, and when new coats were made the cuffs were sewed back. But the once useful buttons remained, now only as ornaments. Even the buttonholes, real or sham, were retained, and to this day we have them. Recently there has been a revive of the cuff idea, and it has been more than often carried to as great an extreme as when it first took the place of the loose sleeve.

Now why are there slits—or as tailors call them vents—in the backs of coats, long and short? When the only means of travel was by horseback the garment had to be made convenient for riding. Coats were then split in the back, enabling the two parts to fall, one on either side of the saddle. Buttons and buttonholes were also placed here so that when off the horse the coat could be fastened together again. We have other means of conveyance now, and special habits for riding, still we have the slits with their attending fasteners.

Finally, why is the coat itself? Perhaps you will say because it is the most convenient garment for the purpose? Yes, but think of its most remote ancestor, the shawl, such as the American Indian wears. Then of its nearer predecessor, the tunic, the cloak, and last of all the jacket. In these we see the evolution of our present day garment. Should we be eternally satisfied with our achievement? Perhaps a very original inventor will arise soon to show us the coat's successor.

After all the development is quite simple and logical. Still there are further questions to consider; perhaps you can think of some, like this: why do men's coats button on the right side and women's on the left side?

The Vicissitudes of Cotton in England

When cotton was first introduced into England it was only used for making lamp wicks. Later, when fine calicoes were imported from India (the word calico, by the way, is derived from Calicut, a town on the Malabar coast), severe acts of Parliament were passed, at the instigation of the woolen industry, to prohibit the use of cotton. Lecky writes that it was "penal for any woman to wear a dress made of Indian calico. In 1786 a lady was fined £200 at the Guild hall because it was proved that her handkerchief was a French cambric." This may have been the way of protecting the home market in 1786, but nowadays the less drastic method of protective duties is considered sufficient to meet the case.

Youth in a Smile

Genevieve Ward, famous tragedienne of the sixties and seventies, has a prescription for youth. It is laughter. "I have tried to keep happy. I think that is the only way to keep young. Cheerfulness is the sunny ray of life. It is the great essential. My mother when 84 was a most ardent pedestrian. She wore short, sensible skirts, and walked many miles every day. She always was cheerful, and she never thought herself old."

College Commencement Days

THE season has come when the various colleges and universities of the country give their degrees to the bachelors who have studied within their walls, and now "commence" their wider career as citizens. A good deal of good-natured fun is poked at the newly-made bachelor that goes out into the world to teach, reform or change it, but it is only half in earnest; we never really laugh at those that wear the badge of hope and light, and we nearly all of us sympathize with them. If ever the doctrine of maxima reverentia is to be applied for youth's benefit, it is in youth's teaching, that he may learn true things and broad, and grow to breathe the wide air of enlightenment with ease and profit. It is by teaching him distorted fact, by twisting his view so that he cannot see for himself, that his heritage is taken from him and his trust betrayed.

He will at first be apt to think upon a basis more academical than practical, but this is as it should be; he has been taught a rule, and looks for its enforcement, and what is sometimes called a youthful enthusiasm is simply knowledge unsteady by practise. If the knowledge be right, then the enthusiasm is right, and we may all pray for its permanence. Permanent it will be, if right knowledge have been taught, and in increasing measure this is the noble work that our universities and colleges do today. It is more to be noticed today than ever that the tendency of these institutions is to guide youth and help it, but only to show him that upon the fact of things he must depend ultimately, and not upon the dogma of this or that man or group of men. This can be noticed especially in the views held by college-bred men upon political subjects; it will be observed that they are distinguished by a tone of independence that is bred not of conceit or of whim, but is based upon their specific knowledge that a thing is not so, simply because they are told it is so. They have further, to some degree, been taken into the storehouse of history and have been shown what precedent has succeeded, what has failed, and noted the cumulative power of the right. In other words, they have been taught to draw their own conclusions.

Who would deny the cordial of such teaching to our youth? Daily the need of higher and better education grows plainer, and daily it repays the public for encouragement. There need be no fear of the effect of education upon our people so long as they are given education pure and simple, and are not given it diluted with arbitrary teaching; the world has grown out of its swaddling clothes and stretches out its hand to grasp that liberty of opinion which is its proper right. In this liberty lies safety. So much is this recognized to be the case that the man that speaks for a fact instead of letting facts speak for themselves is sometimes credited with tampering with them and is come not into the highest favor.

Here and there in a score of places is prepared the festival that marks the climax to years of work for many young men. Their families and friends look at them with pride; let us do the same, and take profit to ourselves in knowing that here are fresh recruits in the battle for the right. But in the kindly feeling for them and in our sympathy with their ardor and their generous hopes, let us remember more the institutions that, rain or shine, for very modest reward, year after year, arouse that ardor and instruct those hopes that we, their fellow-citizens, shall the more easily enjoy our rights in this democracy.

PRESIDENT WILLARD of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad says that the outcome of congressional legislation will be government ownership of railroads. William Jennings Bryan, who was so severely criticized for expressing about the same views in the speech he made on returning from his around-the-world-tour a few years ago, can now begin to enjoy the satisfaction of saying: "I told you so."

A GREAT opportunity is open to Mr. Lodge when he visits Mr. Roosevelt on Sunday. He has it in his hands either to go to Oyster Bay as a very able and adroit member of a party, or casting all smaller considerations to one side, he can go as one American in high place seeking his country's good in conference with another American that has enjoyed a higher. Bacon said that men in high places were thrice servants, "servants of the sovereign or state, servants of fame, and servants of business." We like to think that our senators and representatives are the servants of their country and trust and honor them whenever they seek to earn that honorable title, but it is their own fault if we grow accustomed to thinking of them as servants of party. As to their relations with fame, we gladly leave that for other hands to treat, while we can all trust they are servants to business.

There is no need to attack or defend the thesis that today, as things are, political parties are a necessity; like so many other expedients they seem, so far, to be the best that can answer the purpose. But they are expedients, while the nation is a permanent thing; the nation does not depend on a party, but a party depends on the nation. We are arrived at a point where, for the good of the nation, men should be filled with a single-minded desire for its welfare and for nothing else, when the bold generosity of patriotism can by its sacrifices gain a reward a hundred times more enduring than the immediate results of party success or adroit maneuvering. This nation when once it sees that a man has displayed moral bravery is singularly quick to recognize the fact and to give him in return its unstinted admiration. What is moral bravery but the knowledge acted that there is no truce between right and wrong?

Mr. Lodge can easily make it apparent that he goes to see the former President for the purpose of determining what measures he and Mr. Roosevelt and all citizens shall take that the body politic be no more fevered with the unrest and dissatisfaction that are so plain that they cannot be smothered. If he do not choose to do so, then he will have lost a chance such as is given very seldom to a statesman. By his attainments, his education and his services he is an outstanding figure in the Senate chamber. He has been able, through these things, to give an air of dignity to that chamber which today is too often lacking. By his writings he has taught Americans so much about the great actors in the politics of their country, that they are given much reason for demanding great patriotism and great ability. But a standard taught is a standard that will be applied, and the time is come when a high and vital standard will be set for every man that has his public career made by the suffrages of his fellows. The daily development of our country and the daily history of its public affairs all point to this so unmistakably that small considerations and interests slink off abashed before the tremendous advance of great issues.

The weak spot in the harness of him that cannot let party bow to greater considerations, is that he thereby assumes that a party can have some sort of proprietary interest in a nation. All people resent such an idea, in the end very keenly, and turn upon their professed friends with a force that is generally misjudged. On the other hand, when a man that is a member of the most powerful lawmaking body in the world, that is endowed with learning, wisdom and great experience, joins hands with another that has been his nation's head, and boldly says that for him there comes his country first and his country last, who doubts the response from such a hearer?

THE federal authorities have decided to give the Illinois butter and egg trusts a thorough stirring. Perhaps when the scramble is finished the public may be able to get these very necessary foodstuffs at a lower price.

Mr. McCarthy's Petition

JEREMIAH J. MCCARTHY has filed with his excellency Governor Draper a petition wherein among other things he prays that the present civil service commission may be removed from office. He alleges as matter of fact to sustain such prayer that the commission as now constituted have not obeyed the law and are therefore unfit for office. He alleges, as specific matter to sustain his averment that they are unfit, that they did not certify him to be competent for public office, though he was and is ready to prove his competence.

He is reported to have said that "this controversy is now one of principle." With this statement we find ourselves heartily in accord. If the members of the board have exerted a "seemingly autocratic power," especially if they have done so in contravention of law, we heartily congratulate Mr. McCarthy on his spirited action in behalf of justice. No doubt, for the general benefit of the rules of evidence, Mr. McCarthy will make every effort to prove that the power exerted by the board was more than "seemingly" autocratic, though we trust that he will allow no mere technicalities or crabbed subtleties to stand in his way. If the board has done anything that it ought not, or failed to do anything that it ought, then his excellency should take such steps as are proper in the premises, and under the guidance of Mr. McCarthy will make an example of a body of men that would deprive the community of the services of such a competent man as the petitioner avers that he is.

We feel that in filing this petition with the Governor, Mr. McCarthy has taken a long step towards throwing the civil service open to gentlemen whose merits and accomplishments entitle them not only to the consideration, approbation and encouragement of the board of civil service commissioners, but before that to the notice of the various appointing powers in our city government.

Therefore, but with no little diffidence, we propose to Mr. McCarthy, in case of an issue in this controversy that he will count as happy, should he take office he will hereafter remove no official under him in his department without filing reasons in the shape of an affidavit with the new or purged board of civil service commissioners; that when any one seeks appointment under him, he will give to his qualifications, civil, political, intellectual and moral, the most painstaking examinations, and whether the result be favorable or no, will nevertheless file as above such a detailed affidavit as shall at once combine politeness with justice, benevolence with firmness. This being done, the applicant, in case of failure, will cherish a gentle melancholy rather than a fierce indignation, and one more stone will have been added to the temple of justice.

BEFORE such feats as that performed by Charles K. Hamilton on Monday shall have become commonplace, it might be well to take a short backward glance, with the view of measuring the wonderful progress already made in aviation. Previous to the successful flights by the Wright brothers in 1908 it was still questionable whether the heavier-than-air machine could be made practicable. The year named, indeed, will always be memorable as that in which the aeroplane scored its first triumphs. All previous years had been given over to the development of air navigation by means of the balloon.

Following the successes of the Wrights, aeroplane navigation became so active as to overshadow—save, perhaps, in the cases of Count Zeppelin's demonstrations—all other forms. The pronounced and astonishing performances of the Wrights, of Farman, of Paulhan, of Curtiss, of Bleriot, of DeLesseps, and now of Hamilton, follow each other in such rapid succession, breaking records of altitude, speed and distance, that the need of a ready reference handbook of aviation, revised monthly or weekly, is making itself felt by those who have occasion to speak intelligently of the progress of the flying machine.

There were several remarkable things about the feat just scored by Hamilton—the thirty-two-mile over-water passage, the flight above the smoking chimneys of a manufacturing town, and the disregarding of an accident to the motor while in motion, among them—but the most remarkable of all was the demonstration of the fact that sustained elevation and high speed are both mechanically possible.

For the next few days even the aviators who are doing such thrilling things will have to make room for Mr. Roosevelt in the newspapers' front-page headlines. And just how long this most formidable rivalry may be kept up no one can say at present.

It was very thoughtful on the part of the publishers of Mr. Roosevelt's book relating his hunting experiences in Africa to get the volume out in time to greet him on his return home. It will serve to refresh his memory, on his arrival, regarding the many and varied incidents that have crowded his days during his year's absence from his native shores.

WITH the prizes amounting to $100,000 to be offered at the aviation meet to be held at Washington in October, and other liberal purses to be contested for elsewhere, it is easy to see that there are high old times ahead for the flying machine men.

Hamilton's Flight and Its Meaning

AS TIME goes on and inventions multiply, and even as transportation facilities and accommodations increase, the task of moving people hither and thither in large cities becomes complicated rather than simplified. New York may be called upon to furnish an instance illustrative of the entire situation. Even with surface, elevated and subway systems working to their limits, it is seen that unless something else shall be added the conditions that the people of Manhattan and its sister boroughs have been struggling to escape permanently for the last thirty years will be continued indefinitely.

What is proposed now is that franchises shall be granted for the laying of third tracks on the Second, Third and Ninth avenue elevated roads. The Interborough Rapid Transit Company makes the application, and it is conceded that the proposed improvement—which would enable the company to give its patrons an express service in the rush hours of the morning and evening—would afford more prompt relief to the Bronx and Queens than any other. The application is so reasonable that it will probably be granted. But the granting of it will only serve to emphasize the fact that New York is not very much closer to a permanent solution of its traction problem than it was a generation ago.

This remark is equally applicable to all the great and growing cities of the country. It has been found in the experience of practically all of them that instead of meeting existing needs fully and permanently, transportation improvements create new patronage which in turn soon demands new facilities. This is not due altogether, as is sometimes held, to the natural growth of our big communities. It is due in great measure to the centralizing tendency of the time. As our cities grow their business centers become more compact and congested. Too many people are going to or returning from the same point at the same time every morning and evening. The traction problem will not be wholly and permanently solved until the business centers of our great cities shall burst their present bounds.

It is reported that the Wright aeroplane, at the Indianapolis meet, "skimmed over the grass and came down with the precision of a bird at the exact spot from which it started." In the matter of going where the operator wills it to go, the aeroplane makes the dirigible balloon's dirigibility appear to rather poor advantage.

A Unique Campaign in Indiana

HENRY A. BARNHART is the sitting member of Congress from the thirteenth Indiana district. He is a Democrat and a candidate for reelection. John L. Moorman is his Republican opponent. Congressman Barnhart has adopted the hayrake as his emblem, but he was somewhat anticipated in this move by Candidate Moorman, who, upon his very entrance into the contest, adopted as his emblem the plow.

In another important respect Mr. Moorman has at least a temporary advantage over Mr. Barnhart. The latter, whose party has little at stake in the closing weeks of the present session of Congress, is compelled nevertheless to remain in Washington, while his Republican opponent, hand and foot free, is able to travel around the district doing odd jobs here and there for the farmers and winning their friendship with the view later on to obtain their votes. In fact, he has been at this ever since the beginning of the spring plowing. He is handy with the plow, and his greatest hits are said to be made by walking into a field, taking the reins from the farmer and plowing a few acres of land in the course of a morning or an afternoon, as the case might be.

All this time, of course, the sitting member from the thirteenth Indiana is impatiently awaiting agreements in conference, the disposition of the President's bills and final adjournment of the session. It is said for him, however, that he is bearing up manfully and even smilingly under the strain, and it is predicted that when he and his emblem shall be released early in July there will be such a tossing of hay in the thirteenth as was never seen or heard of before anywhere in Indiana.

Now that it is reported that Congress may adjourn within ten days or two weeks, the public is likely to be reminded that, all in all, its present session has been an interesting and entertaining one. And the session is to close right in the midst of the most interesting incidents, after the manner of the thrilling story, published in parts, wherein just as the great thing is about to happen, one is confronted with the words, "To be continued in our next number." The people are already looking forward to the next Congress as the one that must meet issues of momentous importance.

THOSE who have been calling Senator Dolliver of Iowa a free-trader and a Democrat are, to say the least, pursuing a mistaken course. With as much reason could Democrats in Congress who oppose radical revision be classified as protectionists and Republicans. The basic error in the form of treatment accorded Senator Dolliver and some of his insurgent associates is that a good Republican must of necessity be a high protectionist. There is only one way in which a man's right to stay in his party, while holding to certain views antagonistic to those held by others in his party, can be determined, and that is by the party itself, or that section of it to which he is directly responsible. Only the Republicans of Iowa can determine whether Senator Dolliver is properly representing them, and only the Republicans of Iowa can decide whether his proper place is inside or outside the Republican fold.

Senator Dolliver's position, as he stated it in his latest speech touching on the subject, is impregnable. He insists that he is fighting for the Republican party, not against it. It is not necessary to accept his views in order to grant him the right to entertain and express them, and only the blindest and most foolish form of partizanship would undertake to abridge this right. An impartial onlooker could wish with considerable reason that Senator Dolliver might discuss this matter with less heat and less rancor; but this and many other disagreeable features might be eliminated from the situation at Washington today if representatives of the people on both sides would only understand that the people have never been, and will never be, reconciled to the treatment of great public questions from a personal point of view.

A Present-Day Problem

Senator Dolliver and His Party
